Writing Visions of Hope Richard C. Raymond, 2013-05-01 This nine chapter book narrates a writing centered approach to the teaching of literature and literary research As the title suggests the book also embraces a thematic approach to reading and writing about twentieth century American literature focusing on the grounds for hope in an age of despair The first five chapters explore in detail the teaching of the twentieth century American literature course at the University of Pristina in Kosovo where the author served as Fulbright Professor of American Literature in the spring semester of 2012 Throughout these chapters narrate students in class interactions to illustrate writing to learn strategies for teaching the literature Chapter six then follows the same cohort of 22 students as they learned to ground their literary research in their own questions about American and Balkans narratives of oppression and liberty of despair and hope The last three chapters document the responses of students and their professors to this American theme of liberty and hope as seen through the Balkans lenses of ethnic violence and emerging republican government Specifically chapter seven focuses on students participation in a blog featuring Balkans literature that explores the same issues of liberty and justice examined in the American literature they have read Chapter eight then celebrates student writing the fruit of the writing to learn strategies narrated in earlier chapters Finally chapter nine narrates professors and students responses gathered through surveys and interviewing to questions about their country s violent past and the value of literary study in preparing citizens to shape a new republic

The Cambridge Introduction to Creative Writing David Morley, 2007-05-10 Publisher description

Transformative Experiences in College Neal Christopherson, 2020-11-24 Transformative Experiences in College Connections and Community explores the intersection of two concepts transformative experience in college and the communities in which students learn Emerging from a five year longitudinal interview study tracking a panel of 75 students through four years at a selective liberal arts college this book provides a rich depiction of how aspects of the college community and the relationships developed within that community create opportunities for transformative experiences that lead to personal and academic growth Neal Christopherson argues that transformative experiences in college are primarily the results of interactions with other people and with a broader campus community documenting the ways in which relationships with faculty experiences in courses interaction with peers and the general institutional environment can generate these experiences Christopherson also touches on extracurricular and co curricular activities the importance of a healthy environment for interacting with difference and how students transition out of the institution Scholars of education sociology and communication will find this book particularly useful

Creating Confident Writers: For High School, College, and Life Troy Hicks, Andy Schoenborn, 2020-06-02 Writing should be for an audience other than a teacher and for a purpose beyond getting a grade Connecting their classroom experience to research about writing as well as to framing documents in the field two seasoned writing teachers distill the lessons they've learned about creating confident adolescent and young adult writers Troy Hicks and Andy Schoenborn outline a fundamental stance to their approach to invite encourage and celebrate students writing that is then echoed in the book's three part structure. There are numerous classroom activities and assignments on topics from creating writing goals to supporting revision examples of student work and questions to guide teachers' reflections. In this book for any teacher of writing from middle school through college readers are invited to try strategies and allow students' voices to emerge while discussing with colleagues how these approaches might work for them too.

A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan, 2014-07-15. In A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan provides a new generation of teachers a means and a rationale to reconceive their approach to teaching writing, calling into question the discipline's dependence on argument. Including secondary writing teachers within his purview, Sullivan advocates a more diverse, exploratory and flexible approach to writing activities in grades six through thirteen. A New Writing Classroom encourages teachers to pay more attention to research in learning theory, transfer of learning, international models for nurturing excellence in the classroom, and recent work in listening to teach students the sort of dialogic stance that leads to higher order thinking and more sophisticated communication. The conventional argumentative essay is often a simplistic form of argument, widely believed to be the most appropriate type of writing in English classes, but other kinds of writing may be more valuable to students and offer more important kinds of cognitive challenges. Focusing on listening and dispositions or habits of mind as central elements of this new composition pedagogy, A New Writing Classroom draws not just on composition studies but also on cognitive psychology, philosophy, learning theory, literature, and history, making an exciting and significant contribution to the field.

ePortfolio as Curriculum Kathleen Blake Yancey, 2023-07-03. At a moment when the ePortfolio has been recognized as a high impact practice, as a unique site for hosting student integrative learning, and as a powerful genre for assessment, this book provides faculty, staff, and administrators with a set of frameworks and models useful for guiding students in designing and creating ePortfolios that clearly communicate their purpose and effectively use the affordances of the medium. In short, this book both illustrates and provides guidance on how to support the development of students' ePortfolio literacy. The ePortfolio curricular models provided in ePortfolio as Curriculum include both those integrated within existing disciplinary courses and those offered through credit-bearing stand-alone courses. In taking up questions focused on what students need to know and do in becoming informed, effective ePortfolio makers, the contributors to this volume, from the standpoint of their course outcomes and institutional contexts, present various approaches to developing an ePortfolio curriculum. Individually and collectively, the chapters explain ways to engage students in understanding the potential purposes, structures, audiences, and designs of ePortfolios in developing the reflective practices for contextualizing and informing the selection and curation of artifacts, and in creating appropriate focus and coherence. Synthesizing insights from the previous chapters, the concluding chapter identifies six consistent features of an ePortfolio curriculum that support the development of students' ePortfolio literacy. In addition, Kathleen Blake Yancey identifies and defines seven common ePortfolio curricular dimensions that contribute to students ePortfolio literacy among them student agency digital identity and campus and global citizenship Not least she describes new practices emerging from ePortfolio curricula including new ePortfolio specific genres new metaphors used to characterize ePortfolios and their practices and new issues that the ePortfolio curriculum raises
