

Refugee Blues - Auden

Written in 1939 the poem deals with the escape of Jewish refugees from Nazi Germany.

They were the victims of vicious attacks.

My dear = a man talking to a lover/wife

Blues was a popular form of music, it is influenced by blues (the rhyme scheme). Blues has emotional intensity and a critic of society.

The first two lines of each stanza rhyme.

Society is unfair because Jews don't belong anywhere. The country they thought was fair now is treating them as a threat.

The world of nature has hope, while there is none in the world of man.

The state doesn't care for refugees, they are "officially dead". They are told to wait for another year.

In a political meeting people are complaining that Jews will steal their bread, and they are behaving badly.

The voice of Hitler is like that of a thunder and it frightens them.

A poodle has clothes to wear and a cat has a home to stay in = they treat animals better than how they treat humans.

Birds and fishes are free.

The final two stanzas are dreamlike = the building and the plain where soldiers are marching towards them.

The falling snow reflect the mood of the poem. The snow reminds us of something cold, hostile, unfriendly.

The poem has a strong political message = refugees are people just like us and they should be helped and respected. Refugees should have to face intolerance and uncaring attitudes.

Contrasting images:

- Mansions and holes
- Officially dead, yes still alive
- Love for pets and hostility for refugees

Historical

Six million Jews were murdered between 1933 and 1945.

1941 Jews had to wear the star of David.

Many tried to leave Germany, but western countries set immigration quotas that prevented an influx of refugees.

Even immigration to Palestine was limited by its British administration.

It even happened that some refugee ship were sent back to Germany.

Author

- Auden was born in York in 1907.
- He was deeply committed to social and political issues.
- In 1929 he went to Berlin where he witnessed the rise of Nazism.
- Even though he was a homosexual, he married Thomas Mann's daughter so that she could have a British passport and escape from Nazi Germany.
- In 1939 he moved to the USA because he feared persecution for his political ideas and his sexual orientation.
