

18. Endocrine System

- A) Uses _____ to regulate the body.
1. A hormone is a chemical _____ secreted by endocrine glands.
  2. Hormones are slower than nerve impulses, but with longer lasting effects.
  3. Hormone levels are controlled by feedback mechanisms.

4. Receptor molecules on the surface of the cell membrane receive hormones. As with all proteins, it is the shape of the receptor molecule that determines which hormone it can receive.
- B) The _____ makes _____ and glucagon which control blood sugar.
- Common mistake: "Insulin lowers blood pressure."
Insulin (and glucagon) directly control blood sugar (or glucose) levels, not blood pressure.
- C) Adrenal glands make adrenaline when the body is under stress.
- D) Testosterone (male), estrogen and progesterone (female) are the sex hormones. These are made in the gonads (testes for males, ovaries for females).

Receptor Molecules in the cell membrane can only accept molecules of the correct shape. This is a good example of the Lock and Key Model.

The brain (nervous system) and some endocrine glands.
