Soares,Jonathan M.

Blackburn,German Bou,2017-01-17 According to the World Health Organization WHO in 2012 infectious diseases and related conditions account for more than 70% of premature deaths across 22 African countries and estimated 450 000 people worldwide developed multi drug resistant tuberculosis This alarming situation of great public health concern calls for the urgent development of novel and efficient responding strategies The employment of important research platforms such as

genomics and proteomics has contributed significant insight into the mechanisms underlying microbial infection and microbe host interaction In this Frontiers Research Topic we aim to produce a timely and pertinent discussion regarding the current status of Proteomics of microbial Human pathogens and the role of proteomics in combating the challenges posed by microbial infection and indeed acquired anti microbial resistance As the field of proteomics progressed from 2 DE gel based approaches to modern LC MS MS based workflows remarkable advances have been reported in terms of data quantity and quality Given the immediate and enormous advantages that high resolution and accurate mass spectrometers have brought to the field proteomics has now evolved into a robust platform capable of generating large amounts of comprehensive data comparable to that reported previously in genomics studies For example detection of the complete yeast proteome has been reported and other small proteomes such as those of bacteria are within reach Mass spectrometry based proteomics has become an essential tool for biologists and biochemists and is now considered by many as an essential component of modern structural biology Additionally the introduction of high resolution mass spectrometers has driven the development of various different strategies aimed at accurate quantification of absolute and relative amount of protein s of interest Emerging targeted mass spectrometry methodologies such as Selected Reaction Monitoring SRM Parallel Reaction Monitoring PRM and SWATH are perhaps the latest breakthrough within the proteomics community Indeed through a label free approach targeted mass spectrometry offers an unequalled capability to characterize and quantify a specific set of proteins reproducibility in any biological sample Usefully Aebersold and colleagues have recently generated and validated a number of assays to quantify 97% of the 4 012 annotated Mycobacterium tuberculosis Mtb proteins by SRM As such the Mtb Proteome library represents a valuable experimental resource that will undoubtedly bring new insight to the complex life cycle of Mtb Finally as reviewed recently in Frontiers Research Topic mass spectrometry based proteomics has had a tremendous impact on our current understanding of post translational modification PTM in bacteria including the key role of PTMs during interaction of pathogenic bacteria and host interactions We believe that our understanding of microbial Human pathogens has benefited enormously from both 2 DE gel and modern LC MS MS based proteomics It is our wish to produce an integrated discussion surrounding this topic to highlight the existing synergy between these research fields We envisage this Research Topic as a window to expert opinions and perspectives on the realistic practicalities of proteomics as an important tool to address healthcare problems caused by microbial pathogens
