than free government schools do at prices within reach of even the most impoverished families In the course of his analysis Tooley asks the key questions What proportion of poor children is served How good are the private schools What are the business models for these schools And can they be replicated and improved The evidence is in In poor urban and rural areas around the world children in low cost private schools outperform those in government schools And the schools do so for a fraction of the per pupil cost Ubiquity affordability quality value for money equity choice and sustainability these are the seven categories by which schooling should be judged according to Tooley In every instance one is forced to conclude that low cost non governmental entrepreneurial education as practiced by the poor around the globe contains the key to their rise to prosperity and leadership positions within their own respective cultures Alarmed by recent government barriers in education Americans can now find hope in the triumph in the face of acute adversity of these remarkable schools Because of the pandemic parents in America and Europe are discovering that the education of their children is indeed possible and likely far better without government meddling with rigid seat time mandates outdated school calendars absurd age driven grade levels and worse testing regimes And having experienced the first fruits of educational freedom parents will be increasingly open to the possibilities of ever greater educational entrepreneurship and innovation Thankfully they have Really Good Schools to show the way Microeconomics Robert E. Kuenne,1991 Ethics and Future Generations Rahul Kumar,2018-10-18 Existing human beings stand in a unique relationship of asymmetrical influence over future generations Our choices now can settle whether there are any human beings in the further future how many will exist what capacities and abilities they might have and what the character of the natural world they inhabit is like This volume with contributions from both new voices and prominent established figures in moral and political philosophy examines three generally underexplored themes concerning morality and our relationship to future generations First would it be morally wrong to allow humanity to go extinct Or do we have moral reasons to try and ensure that humanity continues into the indefinite future Second if humanity is to continue into the future how many people should there be And is it morally important whether they have lives that are of high quality or are just barely worth living And third how can we best make sense of the intuitive idea that by not taking action on climate change and preserving natural resources we are in some way wronging future generations This book was originally published as a special issue of the Canadian Journal of Philosophy Saturday Review of Literature ,1928 The Review ,1919 Review Fabian Franklin,Harold de Wolf Fuller,1920
