Poursaee,2016-02-17 Corrosion of reinforcing steel is now recognized as the major cause of degradation of concrete structures in many parts of the world Despite this infrastructure expenditure is being unreasonably decreased by sequestration and the incredible shrinking discretionary budget All components of our infrastructure including highways airports water supply waste treatment energy supply and power generation require significant investment and are subjected to degradation by corrosion which significantly reduces the service life reliability functionality of structures and equipment and safety Corrosion of Steel in Concrete Structures provides a comprehensive review of the subject in addition to recent advances in research and technological developments from reinforcing materials to measurement techniques and modelling This book contains not only all the important aspects in the field of corrosion of steel reinforced concrete but also discusses new topics and future trends Part One of the book tackles theoretical concepts of corrosion of steel in concrete structures The second part moves on to analyse the variety of reinforcing materials and concrete including stainless steel and galvanized steel Part Three covers measurements and evaluations such as electrochemical techniques and acoustic emission Part Four reviews protection and maintenance methods whilst the final section analyses modelling latest developments and future trends in the field The book is essential reading for researchers practitioners and engineers who are involved in materials characterisation and corrosion of steel in concrete structures Provides comprehensive coverage on a broad range of topics related to the corrosion of steel bars in concrete Discusses the latest measuring methods and advanced modeling techniques Reviews the range of reinforcing materials and types of concrete The American Catalog ,1884 Norton's Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular ,1851 Fundamentals and Standards in Hardware Description Languages Jean

Mermet,2012-12-06 The second half of this century will remain as the era of proliferation of electronic computers They did exist before but they were mechanical During next century they may perform other mutations to become optical or molecular or even biological Actually all these aspects are only fancy dresses put on mathematical machines This was always recognized to be true in the domain of software where machine or high level languages are more or less rigorous but immaterial variations of the universally accepted mathematical language aimed at specifying elementary operations functions algorithms and processes But even a mathematical machine needs a physical support and this is what hardware is all about The invention of hardware description languages HDL s in the early 60 s was an attempt to stay longer at an abstract level in the design process and to push the stage of physical implementation up to the moment when no more technology independent decisions can be taken It was also an answer to the continuous exponential growth of complexity of systems to be designed This problem is common to hardware and software and may explain why the syntax of hardware description languages has followed with a reasonable delay of ten years the evolution of the programming languages at the end of the 60 s they were Algol like a decade later Pascal like and now they are C or ADA like They have also integrated the new concepts of advanced software specification languages
