New Essays On The Country Of The Pointed Firs:

New Essays on The Country of the Pointed Firs June Howard, 1994-05-27 This is a collection of new essays on one of the most important works of New England local colour fiction The Country of the Pointed Firs by Sarah Orne Jewett It builds on feminist literary scholarship that affirms the importance and value of Jewett's work but goes beyond previously published studies by offering an analysis of how race nationalism and the literary marketplace shape her narrative The volume constitutes a major rethinking of Jewett's contribution to American literature and will be of broad interest to the fields of American literary studies feminist cultural criticism and American studies

New Essays on The Country of the Pointed Firs, 1994 The Country of the Pointed Firs Sarah Orne Jewett, 2009-11-13 A sharply observed affectionate and unsentimental portrait of life in a Maine fishing village The Country of the Pointed Firs is Sarah Orne Jewett's most enduring work and commonly regarded as the finest example of American regionalist literature in the nineteenth century It was originally published in four installments of the Atlantic Monthly in 1896 this Broadview Edition is based on the Atlantic serialization and also includes the four other stories set in Dunnet Landing The critical introduction situates the text in its historical cultural and literary milieu attending to its place in Jewett's oeuvre and in her biography Appendices include earlier local color writing by Jewett and others Jewett's letters and contemporary reviews of the novel New Essays on The Country of the Pointed Firs, 1991 Handbook of the American Novel of the Nineteenth Century Christine

Gerhardt, 2018-06-11 This handbook offers students and researchers a compact introduction to the nineteenth century American novel in the light of current debates theoretical concepts and critical methodologies The volume turns to the nineteenth century as a formative era in American literary history a time that saw both the rise of the novel as a genre and the emergence of an independent confident American culture A broad range of concise essays by European and American scholars demonstrates how some of America's most well known and influential novels responded to and participated in the radical transformations that characterized American culture between the early republic and the age of imperial expansion Part I consists of 7 systematic essays on key historical and critical frameworks including debates about race and citizenship transnationalism environmentalism and print culture as well as sentimentalism romance and the gothic realism and naturalism Part II provides 22 essays on individual novels each combining an introduction to relevant cultural contexts with a fresh close reading and the discussion of critical perspectives shaped by literary and cultural theory WLA, 2004 New

Essays on Winesburg, Ohio John W. Crowley, John William Crowley, 1990 Edinburgh Companion to Nineteenth-Century American Letters and Letter-Writing Celeste-Marie Bernier, 2016-02-15 Provides a wide ranging entry point and intervention into scholarship on nineteenth century American letter writing This comprehensive study by leading scholars in an important new field the history of letters and letter writing is essential reading for anyone interested in nineteenth century American politics history or literature Because of its mass literacy population mobility and extensive postal system nineteenth century America is a crucial site for the exploration of letters and their meanings whether they be written by presidents and statesmen scientists and philosophers novelists and poets feminists and reformers immigrants Native Americans or African Americans This book breaks new ground by mapping the voluminous correspondence of these figures and other important American writers and thinkers Rather than treating the letter as a spontaneous private document the contributors understand it as a self conscious artefact circulating between friends and strangers and across multiple genres in ways that both make and break social ties Key Features Draws together different emphases on the intellectual literary and social uses of letter writing Provides students and researchers with a means to situate letters in their wider theoretical and historical contexts Methodologically expansive intellectually interrogative chapters based on original research by leading academics Offers new insights into the lives and careers of Louisa May Alcott Charles Brockden Brown Emily Dickinson Frederick Douglass Margaret Fuller Henry James Thomas Jefferson Abraham Lincoln Herman Melville Harriet Beecher Stowe and Edgar Allan Poe among many others

American Women Writers of the 19th Century Heidi M. Hanrahan, 2025-03-17 The nineteenth century was a period of prolific literary production from women writers including figures such as Louisa May Alcott Harriet Jacobs and Zitkala a who played pivotal roles in American literary history Despite facing societal forces aimed at silencing them women writers found ways to assert their voices and contribute to the intellectual and political debates of the era Their works contribute to conversations on a wide range of topics including art gender social reform slavery abolition economic and social inequality national expansion Native American dispossession and the changing identity of the nation Both retrospective and forward looking their written works found diverse audiences of men women and children This book functions as a comprehensive guide to understanding the breadth of nineteenth century women s writing exploring not only the writers and their texts but also the literary periods genres and key cultural historical and social movements that shaped their works By examining these authors impact on American literary traditions and their role in cultural discourse it highlights the lasting relevance of their work in both historical and contemporary contexts

Belonging and Narrative Laura Bieger, 2018-11-09 Why did the novel become so popular in the past three centuries and how did the American novel contribute to this trend As a key provider of the narrative frames and formulas needed by modern individuals to give meaning and mooring to their lives Drawing on phenomenological hermeneutics human geography and social psychology Laura Bieger contends that belonging is not a given it is continuously produced by narrative Against the current emphasis on metaphors of movement and destabilization she explores the salience and significance of home Challenging views of narrative as a mechanism of ideology she approaches narrative as a practical component of dwelling in the world and the novel a primary place making agent

A Jury of Her Peers Elaine Showalter, 2010-01-12 An unprecedented literary landmark the first comprehensive history of American women writers from 1650 to the present In a narrative of immense scope and fascination here are more than 250 female writers including the famous Harriet Beecher

Stowe Dorothy Parker Flannery O Connor and Toni Morrison among others and the little known from the early American bestselling novelist Catherine Sedgwick to the Pulitzer Prize winning playwright Susan Glaspell Showalter integrates women's contributions into our nation's literary heritage with brilliance and flair making the case for the unfairly overlooked and putting the overrated firmly in their place No More Separate Spheres! Cathy N. Davidson, Jessamyn Hatcher, 2002-05-10

Argues against the use of male female gender categories to characterize public and domestic life Undomesticated Ground Stacy Alaimo, 2000 From Mother Earth to Mother Nature women have for centuries been associated with nature Feminists troubled by the way in which such representations show women controlled by powerful natural forces and confined to domestic space have sought to distance themselves from nature In Undomesticated Ground Stacy Alaimo issues a bold call to reclaim nature as feminist space Her analysis of a remarkable range of feminist writings as well as of popular journalism visual arts television and film powerfully demonstrates that nature has been and continues to be an essential concept for feminist theory and practice Alaimo urges feminist theorists to rethink the concept of nature by probing the vastly different meanings that it carries She discusses its significance for Americans engaged in social and political struggles from for example the Indian Wars of the early nineteenth century to the birth control movement in the 1920s to contemporary battles against racism and heterosexism Reading works by Catherine Sedgwick Mary Austin Emma Goldman Nella Larsen Donna Haraway Toni Morrison and others Alaimo finds that some of these writers strategically invoke nature for feminist purposes while others cast nature as a postmodern agent of resistance in the service of both environmentalism and the women's movement By examining the importance of nature within literary and political texts this book greatly expands the parameters of the nature writing genre and establishes nature as a crucial site for the cultural work of feminism Narratives of Community Roxanne Harde, 2009-03-26

Narratives of Community draws together essays that examine short story sequences by women through the lenses of Sandra Zagarell's theoretical essay Narrative of Community Reading texts from countries around the world the collection's twenty two contributors expand scholarship on the genre as they employ diverse theoretical models to consider how female identity is negotiated in community or the roles of women in domestic social and literary community Grouped into four sections based on these examinations the essays demonstrate how Zagarell's theory can provide a point of reference for multiple approaches to women's writing as they read the semiotic systems of community While narrative of community provides an organizing principle behind this collection these essays offer critical approaches grounded in a wide variety of disciplines Zagarell contributes the collection's concluding essay in which she provides a series of reflections on literary and cultural representations of community on generic categorizations of community and on regionalism and narrative of community as she returns to theoretical ground she first broke almost twenty years ago Overall these essays bring their contributors and readers into a community engaged with a narrative genre that inspires and affords a rich and growing tradition of scholarship With Narratives of Community editor Roxanne Harde offers a wealth of critical essays on a wide variety of women's linked series of short stories essays that can be seen overall to explore the genre as a kind of meeting house of fictional form and meaning for an inclusive sororal community. The book itself joins a growing critical community of monographs and essay collections that have been critically documenting the rise of the modern genre of the story cycle to a place second only to the novel. But more than simply joining this critical venture, Narratives of Community makes a major contribution to studies in the short story, feminist theory, women's studies, and genre theory. Its introduction and essays should prove of enduring interest to scholars and critics in these fields as well as continue highly useful in the undergraduate and graduate classrooms.

Gerald Lynch, Professor of English, University of Ottawa

The introduction by Prof. Harde and the 20 essays in the book dialogue with Sandra Zagarell's proposed paradigm of narratives of community, which other scholars have called short story cycles or story sequences. Zagarell's proposal organically blends a generic model with a thematic concern to explain how women writing community often turn to a particular narrative style that itself supports the literary creation of that community. Harde and the volume contributors appropriate this brilliant and engaging proposal in the context of other crucial discussions of the genre, notably Forest Ingram's germinal study, J. Gerald Kennedy's work, and those by Robert Luscher, Maggie Dunn, and Anne Morris. James Nagel, Gerald Lynch, and I am honored to note my own study on Asian American short story cycles to expand the range of the critical discussion on the form.

The quality and diversity of the essays remind us that there is still much work that can be done in the area of genre studies. The volume emphasizes an important caveat to one vital misconception: that although writers like James Joyce or Sherwood Anderson are thought to be the precursors or even inventors of the form, women's sequences by Sara Orne Jewett and Elizabeth Gaskell, among others, actually predate the work of the male writers. This fact suggests that the development of the form as a genre that attends to specific perspectives or creative formulations of and by women needs to be considered in depth. The temporal scope of the volume is therefore a vital contribution to scholarship on the form, as is the diversity of the writers analyzed. Indeed, the examination of narratives by writers from different countries and that focus on characters from different time periods, racial, religious, or ethnic communities, and social class, impels a multilayered reading of the texts that inevitably promotes a nuanced understanding of the project of each of the writers, a project that connects issues of individuality and community in varied and often surprising ways.

The essays thus critically explore the notion of community in its myriad associations with the individual and as a crucial site not only for women's action upon the world but also for her creative endeavors. The essays in the volume revisit familiar texts: Naylor's The Women of Brewster Place, Cisneros's The House on Mango Street, Kingston's The Woman Warrior, Welty's The Golden Apples, Munro's The Lives of Girls and Women, among others, but offer new perspectives on the way form interacts with issues of women's communities and women creating community in these works. Significantly, it also offers readings on texts that have not been analyzed in detail from this perspective: Gaskell's Cranford or Woolf's A Haunted House, for example, thus contributing to a continuing conversation about the ways women write The juxtaposition of the familiar and the new expand the paradigms of current criticism not only on the story cycle but also on women s writing in general Rocio Davis Professor of Literature University of Navarre Roxanne Harde s forthcoming volume Narratives of Community Women s Short Story Sequences provides an abundant collection of varied responses to Sandra Zagarell s longstanding call for further in depth exploration of the genre that Zagarell christened the narrative of community in her 1988 essay linking non novelistic narrative form with representations of female experience As Harde observes such narratives of community overlap significantly with the growing canon of unified but discontinuous collections of autonomous stories that critics have variously labeled as the short story cycle sequence composite The essays in her collection examine a rich variety of such works by women extending the scholarship in this area Harde s ample collection of essays presents a concerted and diverse exploration of the implications of the short story sequence form as a representation of women s lives as part of and in conflict with membership in a community Overall Harde s volume is a welcome addition to current scholarship on the short story sequence bringing in a variety of new voices and perspectives to the community of scholars who have engaged in the exploration of this paradoxical evolving and increasingly popular genre

Dr Luscher A Companion to the Regional Literatures of America Charles L. Crow, 2008-04-15 The Blackwell Companion to American Regional Literature is the most comprehensive resource yet published for study of this popular field The most inclusive survey yet published of American regional literature Represents a wide variety of theoretical and historical approaches Surveys the literature of specific regions from California to New England and from Alaska to Hawaii Discusses authors and groups who have been important in defining regional American literature Together by Accident Stephanie C. Palmer, 2008-12-16 This fascinating account of the regional travel accident motif within American local color literature offers a reassessment of the cultural work done by authors writing during the Gilded Age Stephanie C Palmer shows how events like broken carriage wheels and missed trains were used by local color authors to bring together bourgeois and lower class characters thus giving readers the opportunity to see modernity coming into contact with both rural and urban life Using the works of Sarah Orne Jewett Bret Harte William Dean Howells Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and others Palmer traces the use of the regional travel accident motif and how local color writers employed it to give critiques on class society and modern life Exploring the themes of regional identity modernity and interpersonal relationships Together by Accident offers an intriguing evaluation of the innovations and inconveniences associated with life during the industrializing Gilded Age in America Cosmopolitan Vistas Tom Lutz, 2004 In a major statement on the relation of art and politics in America Tom Lutz identifies a consistent ethos at the heart of American literary culture for the past 150 years Through readings of Sherwood Anderson Willa Cather Hamlin Garland Ellen Glasgow Sarah Orne Jewett Sinclair Lewis Edgar Lee Masters Claude McKay Edith Wharton Anzia Yezierska and others Lutz identifies what he calls literary cosmopolitanism an ethos of representational inclusiveness of the widest possible affiliation and at the same time one of aesthetic discrimination and therefore exclusivity At the same time that it embraces the entire world in Lutz's view literary cosmopolitanism necessitates an evaluative stance and it is this doubleness this combination of egalitarianism and elitism that animates American literature since the Civil War The nineteenth century's realists and sentimentalists the writers of the Harlem Renaissance and of the Southern Renaissance the firebrands who brought in the new canon and the traditionalists who struggled to save the old all ascribe Lutz argues to the same cosmopolitan values however much they disagree on what these values demand of those who hold them

American Literary Regionalism in a Global Age Philip Joseph, 2007-01-01 In this distinctive book Philip Joseph considers how regional literature can remain relevant in a modern global community Why he asks should we continue to read regionalist fiction in an age of expanding international communications and increasing nonlocal forms of affiliation With this question as a guide Joseph places the regionalist tradition of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries at the center of a contemporary conversation about community Part of the challenge Joseph shows is to distinguish between versions of regionalism that speak nostalgically to modern readers and those that might enter actively into a more progressive collective dialogue Examining the works of well known writers including Hamlin Garland Abraham Cahan Willa Cather Zora Neale Hurston and William Faulkner Joseph argues that these regionalist authors share a vision of local communities in open discourse with the external world capable of shaping public thought and policy and also of benefiting from the knowledge and experiences of outsiders Their fiction depicts a range of localities from Jewish American neighborhoods and midwest farming communities to southern African American towns and southwestern mixed race parishes Their characters are often associated with the literary artistic process a method stressing open ended critique that unlike journalistic philosophical or legal processes ensures open dialogue Joseph takes his argument beyond the boundaries of literary scholarship by engaging with art critics such as Lucy Lippard distance learning opponents such as David Noble and civil society proponents such as Robert Putnam and Michael Sandel Like civil society advocates today regionalist writers used the idea of community as a discursive topos and explored how values including home and neighborhood were reconciled with such democratic ideals as individual self determination and collective empowerment
