

Control Lever

The Control Lever on the Handle has three operating positions: Lift, Drive and Lower.

- Lift – Move the Control Lever down to its lowest position. Pump the Handle frame up and down to lift the Jack Forks.
- Drive – Move the Control Lever to the center position. The Jack Forks do not change position when in drive. This position is used when the load is moved from one location to another.
- Lower – Hold the Control Lever up in its highest position. This position automatically moves the Forks to their lowest level. This position is only in place as long as the Control Lever is held up. The Lever moves back to the Drive position when released.

If the Control Lever Does Not Function Properly

Make adjustments as described in the following chart by loosening the Lock Nut (D134) and turning the Control Adjustment Screw (D133). After each adjustment, tighten the Lock Nut and check that all positions of the Control Lever function properly and re-adjust if needed.

| Control Position | Problem                                                     | Turn Adjustment Screw (D133):                                                            |
|------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Drive            | Forks rise instead of staying in neutral.                   | Clockwise until pumping action does not raise forks.                                     |
| Drive            | Forks lower when Control Lever is in DRIVE position. | Counterclockwise until forks do not lower.                                               |
| Lower            | Forks do not lower.                                         | Clockwise until raising the Control Lever to the LOWER position lowers the Forks. |
| Lift             | Forks do not elevate.                                       | Counterclockwise until the Forks elevate while pumping in the LIFT position.      |
