Shopping Material Culture Perspectives:

Shopping Deborah C. Andrews, 2014-11-25 The degree to which shopping or more broadly consumerism is both critiqued and defended in American society confirms the role that commercial goods play in our daily lives This collection of essays provides case studies depicting selected aspects of this engaging activity The authors include several historians with diverging specialties an art historian an anthropologist an environmental journalist a geographer and urban planner and practicing artists Each author demonstrates how a material culture perspective a focus on the relationship between people and their things can illuminate a specific corner of consumption Connecting the essays are concerns about the spaces in which shopping occurs about the experience of shopping itself both individual and social and about its economic environmental and personal downsides Collectively these essays demonstrate how a material culture perspective on shopping yields insights into multiple aspects of American culture

Entangled Things Alison Hulme, 2024-08-22 Entangled Things takes the concept of entanglement as its starting point in investigating the relationship between us and the material things we engage with Each chapter illustrates a particular form of entanglement desiring things hoarding things creating things ridding ourselves of things using ethnographic examples and theoretical perspectives Hulme encourages a wider consideration of the place of humans in the world and the kind of choices we enact when influenced by the material things around us She explores our relationships with material objects in light of both personal and planetary space and personal and historical time from the space in our homes storage spaces landfill and oceans to the times in our lives and the times in wider shared histories that things connect us to not to mention our sense of time and our own place in the world In so doing Hulme intentionally places discussions on our entanglement with things squarely back into the context of the Anthropocene with a provocative analysis in which the Anthropocene is posited as a concept which on one hand takes away human agency placing us in the context of immense geological epochs whilst on the other hand pushes agency upon humans blaming us for the extreme challenges of the current era and looking to us to solve those challenges For Hulme material things are instrumental in helping us to grasp our existential place in the world and weave a way through the complications of living in epochal times grassroots social process During the 1920s and 1930s a minority of enterprising grocers experimented with a wide variety of sometimes wacky design ideas for automating shopping They created specialized stores designed as enclosed retail systems that went far beyond open display techniques to construct unique physical and psychological advantages for automating salesmanship Beyond Piggly Wiggly offers the first perspective on the national scale of experimentation and connects the southern Jim Crow origins of self service to the national history of this mass retailing method Empirical analysis of store arrangements demonstrates how small stores that have previously been overlooked or undervalued as quaint anomalies were integral to the creation of supermarkets Ultimately self service was more than a business decision it was a fundamentally new social practice
