Short Stories With Questions And Answers For Children:

The Stories Children Tell Susan Engel, 1995-01-15 Whether presenting their versions of real events or making up tales of adventure and discovery children enchant us with their stories But the value of those stories goes beyond their charm Storytelling is an essential form through which children interpret their own experiences and communicate their view of the world Each narrative presented by a child is a brushstroke on an evolving self portrait a self portrait the child can reflect on refer to and revise In The Stories Children Tell developmental psychologist Susan Engel examines the methods and meanings of children's narratives She offers a fascinating look at one of the most exciting areas in modern psychology and education What is really going on when a child tells or writes a story Engel's insights into this provocative question are drawn from the latest research findings and dozens of actual children's tales compelling funny sometimes disturbing stories often of unexpected richness and beauty In The Stories Children Tell Susan Engel examines the different functions of storytelling the way the storytelling process changes as children develop the contributions of parents and peers to storytelling the different types of stories children tell the development of a child's narrative voice the best way of nurturing a child's storytelling skills Throughout these discussions Engel presents compelling evidence for what is perhaps her most intriguing idea that in constructing stories children are constructing themselves Children's Problems in Text

Fluency and Reading Comprehension in Typical Readers and Dyslexic Readers: Volume II Manuel Soriano-Ferrer,Simone Aparecida Capellini,Giseli Donadon Germano,2024-03-06 This Research Topic is the second edition of Fluency and reading comprehension in typical readers and dyslexics readers Volume I This Second Edition Research Topic is focused on the characterization of the reading writing difficulties and their comorbidities and in the analysis of evidence based recommendations for early interventions and treatment of these difficulties within the fields of neuropsychology speech language pathology and educational psychology Reading involves decoding and comprehension components and to become efficient it requires a large number of cognitive and linguistic processes Among those decoding failures can have different origins such as deficits in phonological and or visual processing In addition a child with reading difficulties might also have problems in the acquisition of writing and handwriting performance This is an important point to be discussed as reading and writing both suffer interference from vocabulary acquisition linguistic skills memory skills reading and writing practices and literacy methods These processes become important only when the professional needs to deal with students presenting learning difficulties Difficulty in using the knowledge of conversion rules between grapheme phoneme to word reading construction or phoneme grapheme for writing can be identified in schoolchildren with dyslexia dysgraphia and dysortography being a specific learning disorder with a neurological etiology In addition there is established evidence of a speech language processing basis students with specific learning disabilities can show a range of cognitive difficulties e g rapid naming executive functioning working memory These presented difficulties interfere in their learning process impairing their learning development

Reading Comprehension Difficulties Cesare Cornoldi,Jane V. Oakhill,2013-04-03 Recognizing the characteristics of children with learning disabilities and deciding how to help them is a problem faced by schools all over the world Although some disorders are fairly easily recognizable e g mental retardation or very specific to single components of performance and quite rare e g developmental dyscalculia schools must consider much larger populations of children with learning difficulties who cannot always be readily classified These children present high level learning difficulties that affect their performance on a variety of school tasks but the underlying problem is often their difficulty in understanding written text In many instances despite good intellectual abilities and a superficial ability to cope with written texts and to use language appropriately some children do not seem to grasp the most important elements or cannot find the pieces of information they are looking for Sometimes these difficulties are not immediately detected by the teacher in the early school years They may be hidden because the most obvious early indicators of reading progress in the teacher's eyes do not involve comprehension of written texts or because the first texts a child encounters are quite simple and reflect only the difficulty level of the oral messages sentences short stories etc with which the child is already familiar However as years go by and texts get more complex comprehension difficulties will become increasingly apparent and increasingly detrimental to effective school learning In turn studying assimilating new information and many other situations requiring text comprehension from problem solving to reasoning with linguistic contents could be affected Problems with decoding dyslexia and language disorders have attracted more interest from researchers than have specific comprehension problems and have occupied more room in specialized journals Normal reading comprehension has also been a favorite with researchers However scarce interest has been paid to subjects who have comprehension difficulties This book is an attempt to remedy this situation In so doing this volume answers the following questions Does a reading comprehension problem exist in schools How important and widespread is the problem Is the problem specific How can a reading comprehension difficulty be defined and identified Does the syndrome have a single pattern or can different subtypes be identified What are the main characteristics associated with a reading comprehension difficulty When can other well identified problems add to our understanding of reading comprehension difficulties Which educational strategies are effective in preventing and treating reading comprehension difficulties What supplementary information can we get from an international perspective

The Borders of Empathy in Children's Fiction Macarena García-González, 2025-06-16 The Borders of Empathy in Children's Fiction centres the question of how reading fiction develops our moral imagination and our capacities to think and feel with others The question is approached with a good dose of scepticism revising tensions between ethical aesthetic and pedagogical dimensions when certain books films and other cultural materials are recommended for children This volume examines how texts addressed to children are meant to assist socioemotional education and whether we put forward adultist assumptions around such conceptualisations of the emotional The book is organised into nine chapters with some of them focusing on difficult themes such as violence xenophobia death migration as well as gender and social exclusions and some others on more general relationships between emotions media and education The chapters combine a textual analysis of recommended cultural materials for children with insights from empirical research and ethnographic approaches to children's cultures A common thread throughout the book is the open question about the epistemic injustices in knowing children and childhood and how this may be overcome by shifting our research practices with posthumanist philosophies The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution
