The administrative process

A process can be defined as a set of successive steps, phases or actions of a natural or artificial phenomenon. In the context of the study and practice of management, there are different approaches that have contributed to this discipline with a large number of theories, ideas or concepts from different points of view.

Administration has been studied through experience, decision-making, human relations, it has been studied as a social system, also with a quantitative approach and through the tasks performed by the professionals in the field.

Today, the concept of the administrative process is a fundamental part of management theory. Each one of the functions must be understood and carried out correctly by the management professional, and they have factors, principles, or aspects that, if not taken into account, the administrative process could not fulfill its objectives.

Having said that, the process begins with its first phase, which is planning. Organizations seek to achieve a goal in the future, and there are questions such as: What actions should be taken? How to reach that goal? When? Where? Why?

It highlights that the administrative process is related to each activity of the company and that the planning, organization, direction, and control are all part of the functions carried out there, such as marketing, finance, production, and personnel management and I can think it's evident that none of its principles or factors can't be ignored if the organization wants to be successful

Dying For A Voice To Be Heard Mary Baker, 2019-09-09 I entitled my book Dying for a Voice to Be Heard because as a child the adults in my life wanted me to be silent My own mother did not want my siblings and me to tell anyone about my father's abuse because she didn't want us My father didn't want us to tell anyone because he didn't want to pay child support or go to jail My own grandmother did not like me because of the complexion of my skin I remember sitting at the table being happy and smiling and she looked at me and said A girl like you should not be smiling I could not comprehend why a girl like me should not be smiling and I could not ask my grandmother why she said that because I would have been in trouble The worst part of my childhood was I had no one to run to I couldn't tell anybody and there was nobody to save me Everyone knew we were held prisoners in our own home However everyone stayed silent It came to a point where we understood why we had to stay quiet my siblings and I We knew if we ran to our mother's house she would not nurture or support us However if we kept silent and stayed with our father at least we would have support and food on the table and a bed to sleep in In order for us to have the basic things that kids should automatically have However with having the basic needs met as a kid it required us to be physically and emotionally abused We had to take the frustration of being silent almost caused me to almost commit suicide I felt there was no reason to live I had to make a choice I came to a decision that I was going to commit a sin and take my life My choice was I was going to have a say in the direction my life was going When I finally left my abusive father at thirteen I knew I would never return I obtained my voice to say no more I would not accept this drama in my life anymore I was dying inside as a little girl just wanting to be heard but since I made that first step to my journey in life I haven't stopped talking
