Traffic Networks as Information Systems Jean-Pierre Aubin, Anya Désilles, 2016-07-13 This authored monograph covers a viability to approach to traffic management by advising to vehicles circulated on the network the velocity they should follow for satisfying global traffic conditions It presents an investigation of three structural innovations The objective is to broadcast at each instant and at each position the advised celerity to vehicles which could be read by auxiliary speedometers or used by cruise control devices Namely 1 Construct regulation feedback providing at each time and position advised velocities celerities for minimizing congestion or other requirements 2 Taking into account traffic constraints of different type the first one being to remain on the roads to stop at junctions etc 3 Use information provided by the probe vehicles equipped with GPS to the traffic regulator 4 Use other global traffic measures of vehicles provided by different types of sensors These results are based on convex analysis intertemporal optimization and viability theory as mathematical tools as well as viability algorithms on the computing side instead of conventional techniques such as partial differential equations and their resolution by finite difference or finite elements algorithms The target audience primarily covers researchers and mathematically oriented engineers but the book may also be beneficial for graduate students

Performance of Information and Communication Systems Ulf Körner, Arne Nilsson, 2013-11-27 During the last two decades we have seen a tremendous development within the computer and communication industry The ever increasing density on silicon the increasing transmission speeds on fiber based systems as well as twisted pairs the revolutionary development in the wireless area and of course the Internet have all led to many opportunities for new service developments It is interesting to note that the last time this conference was held three years ago the Web really did not fully exist We are now ready to face new interesting challenges It is an utmost importance for the performance community to focus on the modeling and analysis of the Internet the multimedia applications and the untethered applications that are coming to the forefront There will be a need for new and better simulation methods new analytical tools and a much better understanding of measurement techniques Performance of Information and Communication Systems PICS 98 which takes place in Lund Sweden May 25 28 1998 is the seventh conference in a series on performance of communication systems organized by IFIP TC 6 WG 6.3 In response to our call for papers we have received nearly fifty submissions
