Race and Ideology Arthur Kean Spears,1999 Race and Ideology proposes an understanding of racism as a divide and conquer mechanism Race and Ideology reveals how various strands of racial thinking and behavior are crucial for maintaining the unequal distribution of wealth that is more pronounced in the U S than in any other advanced industrial country Though primarily concerned with the U S this collection contains chapters on other societies in order to highlight commonalties and the global nature of the race color problem This book proposes a new understanding of racism by examining a variety of issues that show how racism and colorism along with other forms of oppression are interconnected and maintained by language symbolism and popular culture It includes such topics as how blackness is the symbolic bottom of the U S social structure how the teaching of language and culture can be a tool for understanding inequality and how the media contribute to the dissemination of stereotypes of people of color Race and Ideology offers provocative ideas that must be confronted if we are to construct an understanding of racism that can be useful for social change African American Life in the Georgia Lowcountry Philip Morgan, 2011-11-01 The lush landscape and subtropical climate of the Georgia coast only enhance the air of mystery enveloping some of its inhabitants people who owe in some ways as much to Africa as to America As the ten previously unpublished essays in this volume examine various aspects of Georgia lowcountry life they often engage a central dilemma the region's physical and cultural remoteness helps to preserve the venerable ways of its black inhabitants but it can also marginalize the vital place of lowcountry blacks in the Atlantic World The essays which range in coverage from the founding of the Georgia colony in the early 1700s through the present era explore a range of topics all within the larger context of the Atlantic world Included are essays on the double edged freedom that the American Revolution made possible to black women the lowcountry as site of the largest gathering of African Muslims in early North America and the coexisting worlds of Christianity and conjuring in coastal Georgia and the links with variations to African practices A number of fascinating memorable characters emerge among them the defiant Mustapha Shaw who felt entitled to land on Ossabaw Island and resisted its seizure by whites only to become embroiled in struggles with other blacks Betty the slave woman who in the spirit of the American Revolution presented a list of grievances to her master and S Quash the Arabic speaking Muslim who arrived on one of the last legal transatlantic slavers and became a head man on a North Carolina plantation Published in association with the Georgia Humanities Council What the Wine-sellers Buy Plus Three Ron Milner, 2001 The four Milner plays collected here Checkmates What the Wine Sellers Buy Jazz Set and Urban Transition are characterized by their attention to African American social and psychological culture

African American Life in South Carolina's Upper Piedmont, 1780-1900 W. J. Megginson, 2022-08-03 A rich portrait of Black life in South Carolina's Upstate Encyclopedic in scope yet intimate in detail African American Life in South Carolina's Upper Piedmont 1780 1900 delves into the richness of community life in a setting where Black residents were relatively few notably disadvantaged but remarkably cohesive W J Megginson shifts the conventional study of African Americans in South Carolina from the much examined Lowcountry to a part of the state that offered a quite different existence for people of color In Anderson Oconee and Pickens counties occupying the state's northwest corner he finds an independent brave and stable subculture that persevered for more than a century in the face of political and economic inequities Drawing on little used state and county denominational records privately held research materials and sources available only in local repositories Megginson brings to life African American society before during and after the Civil War Orville Vernon Burton Judge Matthew J Perry Jr Distinguished Professor of History at Clemson University and University Distinguished Teacher Scholar Emeritus at the University of Illinois provides a new foreword Religion in American Life Jon Butler, Grant Wacker, Randall Balmer, 2011-10-06 Quite ambitious tracing religion in the United States from European colonization up to the 21st century The writing is strong throughout Publishers Weekly starred review One can hardly do better than Religion in American Life A good read especially for the uninitiated The initiated might also read it for its felicity of narrative and the moments of illumination that fine scholars can inject even into stories we have all heard before Read it Church History This new edition of Religion in American Life written by three of the country's most eminent historians of religion offers a superb overview that spans four centuries illuminating the rich spiritual heritage central to nearly every event in our nation's history Beginning with the state of religious affairs in both the Old and New Worlds on the eve of colonization and continuing through to the present the book covers all the major American religious groups from Protestants Jews and Catholics to Muslims Hindus Mormons Buddhists and New Age believers Revised and updated the book includes expanded treatment of religion during the Great Depression of the religious influences on the civil rights movement and of utopian groups in the 19th century and it now covers the role of religion during the 2008 presidential election observing how completely religion has entered American politics

African American Foreign Correspondents Jinx Coleman Broussard, 2013-06-07 Though African Americans have served as foreign reporters for almost two centuries their work remains virtually unstudied In this seminal volume Jinx Coleman Broussard traces the history of black participation in international newsgathering Beginning in the mid 1800s with Frederick Douglass and Mary Ann Shadd Cary the first black woman to edit a North American newspaper African American Foreign Correspondents highlights the remarkable individuals and publications that brought an often overlooked black perspective to world reporting Broussard focuses on correspondents from 1840 to the present including reporters such as William Worthy Jr who helped transform the role of modern foreign correspondence by gaining the right for journalists to report from anywhere in the world unimpeded Leon Dash a professor of journalism and African American studies at the University of Illinois who reported from Africa for the Washington Post in the 1970s and 1980s and Howard French a professor in Columbia University's journalism school and a globetrotting foreign correspondent African American Foreign Correspondents provides insight into how and why African Americans reported the experiences of blacks worldwide In many ways black correspondents upheld a tradition of filing objective stories on world events yet some African American journalists in the mainstream media like their predecessors in the black press had a different mission and perspective They adhered primarily to a civil rights agenda grounded in advocacy protest and pride Accordingly some of these correspondents not all of them professional journalists worked to spur social reform in the United States and force policy changes that would eliminate oppression globally Giving visibility and voice to the marginalized correspondents championed an image of people of color that combatted the negative and racially construed stereotypes common in the American media By examining how and why blacks reported information and perspectives from abroad African American Foreign Correspondents contributes to a broader conversation about navigating racial societal and global problems many of which we continue to contend with today
