Fig. 1. Schematic diagram of the experimental setup. The subject is seated in a chair and views the screen through a mirror. The screen displays the visual feedback of the hand position. The hand is positioned at the starting point (A) and moves towards the target point (B). The distance between A and B is 10 cm. The hand is moved by a motorized arm. The motor is connected to the arm via a belt and pulley system. The motor is controlled by a computer. The computer also controls the visual feedback system. The visual feedback system consists of a camera and a monitor. The camera is positioned above the hand and the monitor is positioned in front of the subject. The camera captures the hand position and the monitor displays the hand position to the subject. The subject sees the hand position on the monitor and adjusts the hand position accordingly. The hand is moved towards the target point (B) until it reaches the target point. The distance between A and B is 10 cm. The hand is moved by a motorized arm.
