Across the span of human history, women have participated in world building and life sustaining cultural creativity, making enormous contributions to religion and spirituality. In the contemporary period, women have achieved greater equality with more educational opportunities, female role models in public life, and opportunities for religious expression than ever before. Contemporaneously with this increased visibility, women are actively and energetically engaging with religion for themselves and for their communities. Drawing on the expertise of a range of scholars, this reference chronicles the religious experiences of women across time and cultures. The book includes sections on major religions as well as on spirituality, African religions, prehistoric religions, and other broad topics. Each section begins with an introduction followed by reference entries on specialized subjects, along with excerpts from primary source documents. Contributing to the growing interest in early modern women and religion, this essay collection advances scholarship by introducing readers to recently recovered or little studied texts and by offering new paradigms for the analysis of women's religious literary activities. Contributors underscore the fact that women had complex, multi-dimensional relationships to the religious-political order, acting as activists for specific causes but also departing from confessional norms in creative ways and engaging in intra as well as extra-confessional conflict. The volume thus includes essays that reflect on the complex dynamics of religious culture itself and that illuminate the importance of women's engagement with Catholicism throughout the period. The collection also highlights the vitality of neglected intertextual genres such as prayers, meditations, and translations, and it focuses attention on diverse forms of textual production such as literary writing, patronage, epistolary exchanges, public reading, and epitaphs. Collectively, English Women, Religion, and Textual Production, 1500-1625 offers a comprehensive treatment of the historical, literary, and methodological issues preoccupying scholars of women and religious writing. Women and Religion in Sixteenth-Century France S. Broomhall, 2005-12-15

This work considers how Frenchwomen participated in Christian religious practice during the sixteenth century with their words and their actions. Using extensive original and archival sources, it provides a comprehensive study of how women contributed to institutional, theological, devotional, and political religious matters. Challenging the view of religious reforms and ideas imposed by male authorities upon women, this study argues instead that women Catholic and Calvinist lay and monastic were deeply involved in the culture, meanings, and development of contemporary religious practices. Prayer through Eyes of
