Hartley Emanuel Swedenborg, 1853 Love, Justice, and Education William H. Schubert, 2010-01-01 Love Justice and Education by William H Schubert brings to life key ideas in the work of John Dewey and their relevance for the world today He does this by imagining continuation of a highly evocative article that Dewey published in the New York Times in 1933 Dewey wrote from the posture of having visited Utopia Schubert begins each of thirty short chapters with a phrase or sentence from Dewey's article in response to which a continuous flow of Utopians consider what is necessary for educational and social reform among Earthlings Schubert encourages the Utopians who have studied Earthling practices and literatures to recommend from their experience what Earthlings need for educational and social reform and how they can address obstacles to that reform The Utopians speak to myriad implications of Dewey's report by drawing upon a wide range of philosophical literary and educational ideas including many of Dewey's other writings Their central message is that loving relationships and empathic dedication to social justice are necessary for educational reform that responds wholeheartedly to learner needs and interests True to Dewey's original position such education must be built upon social reform that works to overcome acquisitive society based on greed the principal impediment to realizing human potential democratic society and educational relationships that enhance it To overcome the debilitating acquisitiveness that plagues Earth is the challenge for educators and all human beings who seek to involve the young in composing their lives and cultivating a world of integrity beauty justice love and continuously evolving capacities of humanity Public Relations, Cooperation, and Justice Charles Marsh, 2017-04-21 Modern approaches to public relations cluster into three camps along a continuum conflict

Service, United States Department of Justice United States. Community Relations Service, 1984 Justice After War David Chiwon Kwon, 2023-05-12 Justice After War is aimed especially to both undergraduate and graduate students as well as the general audience who want to understand the significance of a recent development within the just war tradition namely the increasing attention given to the category of jus post bellum postwar justice and peace While examining the interrelated challenges of moral and social norms in both political and legal domains as well as church practices this work proposes an innovative methodology for linking theology ethics and social science so that the ideal and the real can inform each other in the ethics of war and peacebuilding The main task of this project then is to identify what the author views as three key themes of jus post bellum and three practices that are essential to implementing jus post bellum immediately after a war just policing just punishment and just political participation David Kwon endeavors to challenge the view of those who suggest that reconciliation mainly political reconciliation is the foremost ambition of jus post bellum Instead he attempts to justify the proposition that achieving just policing just punishment and just political participation are essential to building a just peace a peace in which the fundamental characteristic must be human security It thus demonstrates that human security is an oft neglected theme in the recent discourse of moral theologians and that a more balanced understanding of jus post bellum will direct attention to the elements composing human security in a postwar context
