ATP-gated P2X receptors in health and disease Andrea Nistri, Geoffrey Burnstock, Baljit S Khakh, Rashid Giniatullin, 2015-01-05 Extracellular ATP is currently recognized as one of the most widely distributed neurotransmitters and neuromodulators in the peripheral and central nervous system ATP gated P2X receptors are expressed by neurons glial and many other non neuronal cells and represent an attractive target for therapeutic interventions Diverse molecular and cellular mechanisms have been identified for P2X receptor functioning including the ability to enlarge the size of the ion pore associated with the release of several key immune molecules A major recent breakthrough was the determination of the X ray crystal structures of zebrafish P2X4 receptor in ATP bound and ATP free states The P2X receptor research field is rapidly growing as evidenced by the almost

2000 papers published in the last 5 years However despite the fundamental signalling function of extracellular ATP in the nervous system the widespread roles of P2X receptors have not been widely elucidated and presented in textbooks In this volume of papers we aim to gather a collection of high quality papers detailing the latest insights from the most accomplished international P2X receptor researchers Importantly basic research into P2X receptors has a strong translational impact and our collection of articles could be a valuable guide for the development of new pharmacological and biotechnological tools addressing the function of P2X receptors Within this collection we plan to cover receptor structure function relationships receptors trafficking to highlight the special properties of P2X receptors and their pharmacological profiles and to describe the translational aspects of cellular ATP signaling in pain and in other neurological and vascular diseases

Advances in Plastid Biology and Its Applications Niaz Ahmad, Steven J. Burgess, Brent L. Nielsen, 2016-12-12 One of the distinguishing features of plants is the presence of membrane bound organelles called plastids Starting from proplastids undifferentiated plastids they readily develop into specialised types which are involved in a range of cellular functions such as photosynthesis nitrogen assimilation biosynthesis of sucrose starch chlorophyll carotenoids fatty acids amino acids and secondary metabolites as well as a number of metabolic reactions like sulphur metabolism The central role of plastids in many aspects of plant cell biology means an in depth understanding is key for a holistic view of plant physiology Despite the vast amount of research the molecular details of many aspects of plastid biology remains limited Plastids possess their own high copy number genome known as the plastome Manipulation of the plastid genome has been developed as an alternative way to developing transgenic plants for various biotechnological applications High copy number of the plastome site specific integration of transgenes through homologous recombination and potential to express proteins at high levels 70% of total soluble proteins has been reported in some cases are some of the technologies being developed Additionally plastids are inherited maternally providing a natural gene containment system and do not follow Mendelian laws of inheritance allowing each individual member of the progeny of a transplastomic line to uniformly express transgene s Both algal and higher plant chloroplast transformation has been demonstrated and with the ability to be propagated either in bioreactors or in the field both systems are well suited for scale up of production The manipulation of chloroplast genes is also essential for many approaches that attempt to increase biomass accumulation or re routing metabolic pathways for biofortification food and fuel production This includes metabolic engineering for lipid production adapting the light harvesting apparatus to improve solar conversion efficiencies and engineering means of suppressing photorespiration in crop species which range from the introduction of artificial carbon concentrating mechanisms or those pre existing elsewhere in nature to bypassing ribulose biphosphate carboxylase oxygenase entirely The purpose of this eBook is to provide a compilation of the latest research on various aspects of plastid biology including basic biology biopharming metabolic engineering bio fortification stress physiology and biofuel production
