Collins, 2009-11-15 Americans have been shocked by media reports of the dismal working conditions in factories that make clothing for U S companies But while well intentioned many of these reports about child labor and sweatshop practices rely on stereotypes of how Third World factories operate ignoring the complex economic dynamics driving the global apparel industry To dispel these misunderstandings Jane L Collins visited

two very different apparel firms and their factories in the United States and Mexico Moving from corporate headquarters to factory floors her study traces the diverse ties that link First and Third World workers and managers producers and consumers Collins examines how the transnational economics of the apparel industry allow firms to relocate or subcontract their work anywhere in the world making it much harder for garment workers in the United States or any other country to demand fair pay and humane working conditions Putting a human face on globalization Threads shows not only how international trade affects local communities but also how workers can organize in this new environment to more effectively demand better treatment from their distant corporate employers

Another Possible World Ivan Petrella, 2013-01-25 Liberation theology was the most important theological movement of the 20th century Its influence shook the Third and First world Born from an epistemological break from the whole of the Western theological tradition liberation theology was not one theological school among others in the canon Instead it sought a new understanding of theology itself The basis of that new understanding was the attempt to do theology from the perspective of the poor majority of humankind Liberation theology whether Latin American U S Black African Feminist realized that theology had traditionally been done from the standpoint of privilege Western theology was the product of a minority of humankind living in a state of affluent exception poverty was the norm for the majority of the world s population By grounding itself in the perspective of the poor liberation theology came as close as possible to being the first truly global theology This series recovers the heart and soul of liberation theology by focusing on authors that ground their work in the perspective of the majority of the world's poor Another Possible World is the book resulting from the first World Forum on liberation theology that took place in 2005 in Brazil This international gathering discussed themes of liberation ecumenical differences inter religious commitments and historical and interdisciplinary methodologies from the perspective of the global poor The resulting chapters come from an internationally acclaimed group of contributors This collection brings the current debates within liberation theologies right up to date and allows readers to acquaint themselves with key thinkers on the most relevant topics within this discipline

Tucker, 2012-06-15 The aesthetic politics of social movements turn public life into a public stage where mutual displays of performance often trump rational debate and urban streets become sites of festivals and carnival In his penetrating new book Workers of the World Enjoy Kenneth Tucker provides a new model for understanding social change in our image saturated and aesthetically charged world As emotional and artistic images inform our perceptions and evaluation of politics art and performance often provide new and creative ways of understanding self and society Spanning the nineteenth twentieth and twenty first centuries Workers of the World Enjoy uses examples from major social movements that have dramatically changed the dominant capitalist society often in the name of labor Tucker investigates how class and culture develop as he raises questions about what it means for public life and social movements when politics and drama come together Tucker catalogues how aesthetic politics influences social movements from French Revolutionary syndicalism and fascism to the selling of the President and the street theater of the contemporary global justice movement He also discusses the work of political theorists including Jurgen Habermas Jeffrey Alexander and Nancy Fraser to critique the ways public sphere has been studied
