LIFT WITH YOUR LEGS
KEEP YOUR BACK STRAIGHT
KNOW YOUR LIMITS

ASSESS your task FIRST

INFLUENCE your PT's physical health risk factors. Check any relevant factors from your task and work environment before you start your shift.

Position your feet apart

Ensure your legs are shoulder-width apart for maximum support. Wide or small steps for narrow aisles should widen placement.

THINK IN your HEAD

Using your core abdominal muscles will help you in the proper lifting position and reduce strain on your spine.

LIFT with your LEGS

Bend at the knees & hips not your back. Your leg muscles are stronger than your back and can withstand greater force. This is known as the Bent-Knee Technique (BKT).

Keep your back STRAIGHT

When you bend your back straight it protects your legs, uses the majority of the weight, making you less likely to injure your back.

Hold the object at waist level and close to the body

Most arm and neck health problems are caused by holding up an object at waist level or above. Hold the object at waist level and closer to the body than at very often height greater than from your body.

Avoid lifting overhead or from below waist height

The risk of injury increases when objects are lifted from overhead or below waist height. Avoid lifting objects at those heights when possible.

Don't twist or twist while you are lifting or carrying

Improper bending or twisting could throw you off balance or cause injury.

Reduce the size of the load where possible

When possible reduce the size of the load as much as possible. Use smaller but more frequent trips, e.g. break a heavy load into smaller portions.

Use lifting aids

Never hesitate to request assistance or get help to lift or carry a heavy load whenever possible. Options include: telehandlers, forklifts, pallet trucks, conveyors belts, trolleys, cranes or hoists.

Test person lifts

When lifting with two or more people, it is better to use a team of three than a team of two. If one person is carrying something that could potentially cause injury.

Ask for help

Ask for help. If you cannot lift an object, don't. Even if the object is not heavy, if it is extremely large or cumbersome, it may be difficult to lift. It is better to wait until you have assistance than to try and lift something that could potentially cause injury.
