

LETTER OF RECOMMENDATION

To Whom It May Concern

I have had the pleasant opportunity of supervising Jenna Wilkins in a period of three years while she worked as registered nurse at Local Healthcare Hospital. Seeing Jenna's dedication towards patient care has always been delightful to watch most especially praising her immense capability of dealing with emergencies with sensitivity, tact and professionalism. This is one thing that is not only visible to colleagues, but to hear patients as well.

Jenna is calm and self-assured by nature. For these qualities, she has easily become a credit to our facility where she had the opportunity to consistently offer different patients with high quality medical care. She is highly capable of working amidst a high stress environment. This has been tested several times already. She also had the opportunity to work at the hospital's busiest section, the trauma center, for two years, and has provided consistent skillful care to different patients who are distressed with their situation.

She is also a very responsible person, never passing up a good opportunity to be able to volunteer her services even at times where there is a high volume of patients. Her personal work style is somewhat task oriented, with her sensitivity towards the different needs of patients, as well as their families are well placed. As a matter of fact, I observe that she is one of the popular nurses who worked in our facility. I, for a fact, find her dependable during the entire time she spent working here.

I personally recommend Jenna, without any doubt or reservations, for work in a similar position, as well as any endeavor that she decides to pursue. You may contact me at (XXX) -XXX-XXXX for further information that you may need regarding her application.

Respectfully yours,

Sarah Nightingale
