Approaches to Assessment that Enhance Learning in Higher Education Stylianos Hatzipanagos,Rebecca Rochon,2014-10-10 This book addresses the need to diversify mainstream forms of assessment currently used in Higher Education in order to re establish the focus on the learning process Making assessment central to student learning is about returning to what current research emphasises the primary beneficiary of assessment should be the student To achieve this in the assessment context students and tutors must engage in a process of dialogue and feedback It seems to be widely accepted that assessment succeeds when the learner monitors identifies and then is able to bridge the gap between current learning achievements and agreed goals It is however more questionable whether adequate opportunities are given to students to be active participants in closing what has been termed the loop Contributors to this book have responded in different ways to the challenge of enhancing learning through assessment offering reasons for the lack of focus on learning within assessment processes as well as suggesting possible solutions The chapters demonstrate a balance between innovation and practicality drawing on the underpinning theories The result is both rich in discussion and an extremely useful resource for practitioners This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment Evaluation in Higher Education

Social Media in Medicine Margaret Chisolm,2018-02-05 The use of social media around the world has exploded in recent years with the number of monthly active users of Facebook and Twitter estimated to be one billion and one quarter billion respectively Physicians and medical trainees are among the users of social media raising questions of how Facebook Twitter and other novel online tools may best be harnessed to further medical research patient care and educational pursuits Because social media enables an immediate exchange of information and ideas around shared areas of interest it has fostered communication and collaboration among a global network of researchers clinicians patients and learners Social Media in Medicine reviews a range of topics from research ethics to medical education and includes personal reflections by clinicians and learners that represent diverse opinions about the role of social media in medicine The book is relevant to all healthcare stakeholders and will hopefully encourage ideas and questions to generate more research into the use of social media in medical research patient care and education This book was originally published as a special issue of the International Review of Psychiatry

Business World ,2005 A Mind at a Time Mel Levine,2002-04-04 Different minds learn differently writes Dr Mel Levine one of the best known education experts and pediatricians in America today And that s a problem for many children because most schools still cling to a one size fits all education philosophy As a result these children struggle because their learning patterns don t fit the schools they are in In A Mind at a Time Dr Levine shows parents and others who care for children how to identify these individual learning patterns He explains how parents and teachers can encourage a child s strengths and bypass the child's weaknesses. This type of teaching produces satisfaction and achievement instead of frustration and failure. Different brains are differently wired. Dr. Levine explains. There are eight fundamental systems or components of learning that draw on a variety of neurodevelopmental capacities. Some students are strong in certain areas and some are strong in others but no one is equally capable in all eight. Using examples drawn from his own extensive experience, Dr. Levine shows how parents and children can identify their strengths and weaknesses to determine their individual learning styles. For example, some students are creative and write imaginatively but do poorly in history because weak memory skills prevent them from retaining facts. Some students are weak in sequential ordering and can't follow directions. They may test poorly and often don't do well in mathematics. In these cases, Dr. Levine observes the problem is not a lack of intelligence but a learning style that doesn't fit the assignment. Drawing on his pioneering research and his work with thousands of students, Dr. Levine shows how parents and teachers can develop effective strategies to work through or around these weaknesses. It's taken for granted in adult society that we cannot all be generalists skilled in every area of learning and mastery. Nevertheless, we apply tremendous pressure to our children to be good at everything. They are expected to shine in math, reading, writing, speaking, spelling, memorization, comprehension, problem solving, and none of us adults can do all this, observes Dr. Levine. Learning begins in school but it doesn't end there. Frustrating a child's desire to learn will have lifelong repercussions. This frustration can be avoided if we understand that not every child can do equally well in every type of learning. We must begin to pay more attention to individual learning styles to individual minds, urges Dr. Levine, so that we can maximize children's learning potential. In A Mind at a Time, he shows us how.

Reading Assessment and Instruction for All Learners Jeanne Shay Schumm, 2017-02-13 Weaving together the latest knowledge and best practices for teaching children to read, this indispensable text and professional resource provides a complete guide to differentiated instruction for diverse learners. Uniquely integrative, the book places the needs of English language learners and students with disabilities front and center instead of treating them as special topics. Accessible chapters on each of the core components of literacy clearly demonstrate how to link formal and informal assessment to evidence-based instruction. Special features include Research Briefs, Tech Tips, Internet Resources, Reflection, and Action Questions, and dozens of reproducible student activities and assessment tools.

Advances in Machine Learning I Jacek Koronacki, Zbigniew W. Ras, Slawomir T. Wierzbichon, 2010-02-04 Professor Richard S. Michalski passed away on September 20, 2007. Once we learned about his untimely death, we immediately realized that we would no longer have with us a truly exceptional scholar and researcher who for several decades had been influencing the work of numerous scientists all over the world, not only in his area of expertise, notably machine learning, but also in the broadly understood areas of data analysis, data mining, knowledge discovery, and many others. In fact, his influence was even much broader due to his creative vision, integrity, scientific excellence, and exceptionally wide intellectual horizons, which extended to history, political science, and arts. Professor Michalski's death was a particularly deep loss to the whole Polish scientific community and the Polish Academy of Sciences in particular. After graduation he began his research career at the Institute of Automatic Control Polish Academy of Science in Warsaw. In 1970 he left his native country and held various prestigious positions at top US universities. His research gained impetus and he soon established himself as a world authority in his areas of interest; notably he was widely considered a father of machine learning.

Handbook of Research on Educational Leadership and Research Methodology Wang, Viktor, 2022-06-24. Education inevitably influences society and our future. As literature and experience tells, educational leaders impact not only their institutions but ultimately the learning outcomes for a large portion of society's members. Educational leaders are charged with more than creating a viable future for an institution; they are also charged with contributing to and creating a viable positive human future, not an easy task amid the turbulence and disruption of our times. The Handbook of Research on Educational Leadership and Research Methodology discusses the evolution of educational leadership knowledge, thoughts, and practices by sharing the perspectives, experiences, theories, and philosophies related to educational leadership and research methodologies across all levels of education. Covering topics such as critical race design, toxic leadership, and adult learning, this major reference work is a critical resource for faculty and administrators of both K-12 and higher education: principals, superintendents, chancellors, directors, pre-service teachers, teaching instructors, government officials, librarians, researchers, and academicians.

Educational Leadership and Organizational Management Victor C.X. Wang, Bernice Bain, John Hope, Catherine A. Hansman, 2016-10-01. This book is intended for students, leaders, and managers who wish to explore the personal relevance and conceptual bases of educational leadership and organizational management and to develop their expertise in this field. It is a book written for both scholars and practitioners. The general public will also appreciate the accessible language in the book. There are two goals in the experiential learning process. One is to learn the specifics of a particular subject matter; in this case, educational leadership and organizational management. The other is to learn about one's own strengths and weaknesses as a learner. This book is focused on the analysis of prevalent theories and concepts and their application to the development of leadership and management skills and the knowledge and attitudes required to solve real-world problems in the workplace. For decades, students have focused their studies of educational leadership and organizational management theories in classroom settings without actual opportunities to apply these theories in the workplace. A profound and significant lesson learned in history is that we must follow the principle of integrating theory with practice, unity of theory with practice. Then we can follow the policy of walking on two legs, an analogy made by the late Chinese chairman Mao Ze Dong.
