No Boundaries Aborigin:

Aboriginal Art and Australian Society Laura Fisher, 2016-05-30 This book is an investigation of the way the Aboriginal art phenomenon has been entangled with Australian society's negotiation of Indigenous people's status within the nation. Through critical reflection on Aboriginal art's idiosyncrasies as a fine arts movement its vexed relationship with money and its mediation of the politics of identity and recognition this study illuminates the mutability of Aboriginal art's meanings in different settings. It reveals that this mutability is a consequence of the fact that a range of governmental activist and civil society projects have appropriated the art's vitality and metonymic power in national public culture and that Aboriginal art is as much a phenomenon of visual and commercial culture as it is an art movement. Throughout these examinations Fisher traces the utopian and dystopian currents of thought that have crystallised around the Aboriginal art movement and which manifest the ethical conundrums that underpin the settler state condition.

Aboriginal and Treaty Rights in Canada Michael Asch, 2007-10-01 In the last two decades there has been positive change in how the Canadian legal system defines Aboriginal and treaty rights. Yet even after the recognition of those rights in the Constitution Act of 1982 the legacy of British values and institutions as well as colonial doctrine still shape how the legal system identifies and interprets Aboriginal and treaty rights.

What results is a systematic bias in the legal system that places Indigenous peoples at a distinct disadvantage. The eight essays in Aboriginal and Treaty Rights in Canada focus on redressing this bias. All of them apply contemporary knowledge of historical events as well as current legal and cultural theory in an attempt to level the playing field. The book highlights rich historical information that previous scholars may have overlooked. Of particular note are data relevant to better understanding the political and legal relations established by treaty and the Royal Proclamation of 1763. Other essays include discussion of such legal matters as the definition of Aboriginal rights and the privileging of written over oral testimony in litigation. The collection also includes an essay that by means of ethnographic and historical data raises concerns respecting how the law might be distorted even further if we are not careful in assuring that what is defined as Indigenous today is detached from its own traditions and divorced from contemporary issues. In sum, Aboriginal and Treaty Rights in Canada shows that changes in the way in which these rights are conceptualized and interpreted are urgently needed. This book then offers concrete proposals regarding substantive processual and conceptual matters that together provide the means to put change into practice.

Six Paintings from Papunya Fred R. Myers, Terry

Smith, 2024-08-09 In the early 1970s at Papunya, a remote settlement in the Central Australian desert, a group of Indigenous artists decided to communicate the sacred power of their traditional knowledge to the wider world beyond their own. Their exceptional innovative efforts led to an outburst of creative energy across the continent that gave rise to the contemporary Aboriginal art movement that continues to this day. In their new book, anthropologist Fred Myers and art critic Terry Smith discuss six Papunya paintings featured in a 2022 exhibition in New York. They draw on several discourses that have developed around First Nations art, notably anthropology, art history, and curating as practiced by Indigenous and non-Indigenous interpreters. Their focus on six key paintings enables unusually close and intense insight into the works' content and extraordinary innovation. Six Paintings from Papunya also includes a reflection by Indigenous curator and scholar Stephen Gilchrist who reflects on the nature and significance of this rare transcultural conversation.

Rattling Spears Ian

McLean, 2016-06-15 Large, bold, and colorful Indigenous Australian art, sometimes known as Aboriginal art, has made an indelible impression on the contemporary art scene. But it is controversial, dividing the artists, purveyors, and collectors from those who smell a scam. Whether the artists are victims or victors, there is no denying the impact of their work in the media, on art collectors, and the art world at large, and on our global imagination. How did Australian art become the most successful Indigenous form in the world? How did its artists escape the ethnographic and souvenir markets to become players in an art market to which they had historically been denied access? Beautifully illustrated, this full, stunning account not only offers a comprehensive introduction to this rich artistic tradition but also makes us question everything we have been taught about contemporary art.

Identity, Culture and the Politics of Community Development Stacey-Ann Wilson, 2015-01-12 This volume takes as its starting point that issues of identity and culture are important and relevant for community development in nearly every society It is therefore essential that community development practitioners acknowledge both culture as well as the political necessity of incorporating cultural systems cultural values and traditions into community development initiatives This book argues that including identity and culture in community development design and treating identity and culture as an intrinsic asset can be beneficial for all types of community action from social cohesion to community economic development This book is a rethinking and reconceptualising of community in an international context and interrogates what community building community engagement and community development could entail in this context The contributors in this volume address identity culture and community development in both developing and developed countries from multidisciplinary perspectives The chapters explore different conceptual and theoretical frameworks in analysing identity and culture in community development and provide empirical insights on community development efforts around the globe Furthermore the chapters explore different community engagement processes different development models and different stakeholder participation models and processes in an effort to demonstrate that there is no one size fits all design when it comes to community development

Global Indigenous Health Robert Henry, Amanda LaVallee, Nancy Van Styvendale, Robert Alexander Innes, 2018-10-30
Indigenous peoples globally have a keen understanding of their health and wellness through traditional knowledge systems. In the past, traditional understandings of health often intersected with individual, community, and environmental relationships of well-being, creating an equilibrium of living well. However, colonization and the imposition of colonial policies regarding health, justice, and the environment have dramatically impacted Indigenous peoples' health. Building on Indigenous knowledge systems of health and critical decolonial theories, the volume's contributors, who are academic and community researchers from Canada, the United States, Sweden, and New Zealand, weave a narrative to explore issues of Indigenous health within four broad themes: ethics and history, environmental and ecological health, impacts of colonial violence on kinship and Indigenous knowledge, and health activism. Chapters also explore how Indigenous peoples are responding to both the health crises in their communities and the ways for non-Indigenous people to engage in building positive health outcomes with Indigenous communities. Global Indigenous Health is unique and timely as it deals with the historical and ongoing traumas associated with colonization and colonialism, understanding Indigenous concepts of health and healing, and ways of moving forward for health equity. Contributors: Sharon Leslie Acoose, Seth Adema, Peter Butt, John E. Charlton, Colleen Anne Dell, Debra Dell, Paul DePasquale, Judy A. Dow, C. Tait, Lisa Tatonetti, Margaretha Uttjek, Nancy Van Styvendale. Medicine Unbundled Gary Geddes, 2017-02-15. We can no longer pretend we don't know about residential schools, murdered and missing Aboriginal women, and Indian hospitals. The only outstanding question is how we respond. Tom Sandborn, Vancouver Sun. A shocking exposé of the dark history and legacy of segregated Indigenous health care in Canada. After the publication of his critically acclaimed 2011 book Drink the Bitter Root: A Writer's Search for Justice and Healing in Africa, author Gary Geddes turned the investigative lens on his own country, embarking on a long and difficult journey across Canada to interview Indigenous elders willing to share their experiences of segregated health care, including their treatment in the Indian hospitals that existed from coast to coast for over half a century. The memories recounted by these survivors, from gratuitous drug and surgical experiments to electroshock treatments intended to destroy the memory of sexual abuse, are truly harrowing and will surely shatter any lingering illusions about the virtues or good intentions of our colonial past. Yet this is more than just the painful history of a once so-called vanishing people, a people who have resisted vanishing despite the best efforts of those in charge; it is a testament to survival, perseverance, and the power of memory to keep history alive and promote the idea of a more open and just future. Released to coincide with the Year of Reconciliation 2017. Medicine

Unbundled is an important and timely contribution to our national narrative      The Colonisation and Settlement of Taiwan, 1684-1945 Ruiping Ye, 2018-09-03 The dispossession of indigenous peoples by conquest regimes remains a pressing issue This book unlike most other books on the subject contrasts two different colonial administrations first the Chinese Qing Empire then from 1895 the Japanese It shows how under the Chinese legal system the Qing employed the Chinese legal system to manage the relationship between the increasing numbers of Han Chinese settlers and the indigenous peoples and how although the Qing regime refrained from taking actions to transform aboriginal land tenure nevertheless Chinese settlers were able to manipulate aboriginal land tenure to their advantage It goes on to examine the very different approach of the Japanese colonial administration which following the Meiji Restoration of 1868 had begun to adopt a Western legal framework demonstrating how this was intentionally much more intrusive and how the Japanese modernized legal framework significantly disrupted aboriginal land tenure Based on extensive original research the book provides important insights into colonisation different legal traditions and the impact of colonial settlement on indigenous peoples      Engaging First Peoples in Arts-Based Service Learning Brydie-Leigh Bartleet, Dawn Bennett, Anne Power, Naomi Sunderland, 2015-11-11 This volume offers educators higher education institutions communities and organizations critical understandings and resources that can underpin respectful reciprocal and transformative educative relationships with First Peoples internationally With a focus on service learning each chapter provides concrete examples of how arts based community led projects can enhance and support the quality and sustainability of First Peoples cultural content in higher education In partnership with communities across Australia Aotearoa New Zealand Canada and the United States contributors reflect on diverse projects and activities offer rich and engaging first hand accounts of student community and staff experiences share recommendations for arts based service learning projects and outline future directions in the field      Aboriginal-Colonial Exchanges in New South Wales, 1800-1835 Annemarie McLaren, 2025-07-11 In Aboriginal Colonial Exchanges in New South Wales 1800 1835 Annemarie McLaren re tells key elements of the foundational story of Australia the meeting between Indigenous people and colonists and the entangled world that resulted She does so through a nuanced and peopled narrative account that is novel in its focus on tracing objects and its deep readings of people and episodes With fresh attention on Indigenous perspectives its claims about the extent of diplomacy and negotiation and its vivid engaging style Aboriginal Colonial Exchanges in New South Wales 1800 1835 will appeal to non specialist readers as well as a global academic community in the fields of history and empire literary critics Indigenous studies scholars cultural anthropologists students at a tertiary level and art historians archivists and those working in collecting institutions more broadly such as museums libraries and galleries      Aboriginal Law, Fourth Edition Thomas Isaac, 2012-08-15 Thomas Isaac looks at the broad picture of trends that are developing in the law and the background highlighting aspects of Canadian law that impact Aboriginal peoples and their relationship with the wider Canadian society While covering issues such as Aboriginal and treaty rights constitutional issues land claims self

Toxic Timescapes Simone M. Müller, May-Brith Ohman Nielsen, 2023-01-17 An interdisciplinary environmental humanities volume that explores human environment relationships on our permanently polluted planet While toxicity and pollution are ever present in modern daily life politicians juridical systems media outlets scholars and the public alike show great difficulty in detecting defining monitoring or generally coming to terms with them This volume's contributors argue that the source of this difficulty lies in the struggle to make sense of the intersecting temporal and spatial scales working on the human and more than human body while continuing to acknowledge race class and gender in terms of global environmental justice and social inequality The term toxic timescapes refers to this intricate intersectionality of time space and bodies in relation to toxic exposure As a tool of analysis it unpacks linear understandings of time and explores how harmful substances permeate temporal and physical space as both event and process It equips scholars with new ways of creating data and conceptualizing the past present and future presence and possible effects of harmful substances and provides a theoretical framework for new environmental narratives To think in terms of toxic timescapes is to radically shift our understanding of toxicants in the complex web of life Toxicity pollution and modes of exposure are never static therefore dose timing velocity mixture frequency and chronology matter as much as the geographic location and societal position of those exposed Together these factors create a specific toxic timescape that lies at the heart of each contributor's narrative Contributors from the disciplines of history human geography science and technology studies philosophy and political ecology come together to demonstrate the complex reality of a toxic existence Their case studies span the globe as they observe the intersection of multiple times and spaces at such diverse locations as former battlefields in Vietnam aging nuclear weapon storage facilities in Greenland waste deposits in southern Italy chemical facilities along the Gulf of Mexico and coral breeding laboratories across the world

Everywhen Henry F. Skerritt, Hetti Perkins, Fred R. Myers, Narayan Khandekar, 2016-01-01 This publication accompanies the exhibition Everywhen The Eternal Present in Indigenous Art from Australia Harvard Art Museums Cambridge Massachusetts February 5 through September 18 2016

Indigenous Peoples and Constitutional Reform in Australia Bede Harris, 2023-12-01 This book examines whether Australia's constitution should be reformed so as to enable the country to fulfil its obligations under the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples which it ratified in 2009 The book surveys the history of the constitutional status of Australia's Indigenous peoples from the time of colonisation through to the current debate on Indigenous constitutional recognition However it argues that the term Indigenous constitutional recognition implying that mere acknowledgement of the existence of Indigenous peoples is sufficient to meet their legitimate expectations misrepresents the nature of the project the country needs to engage in The book argues that Australia should instead embark upon a reform programme directed towards substantive and not merely symbolic constitutional change It argues that only by the inclusion in the constitution of enforceable constitutional rights can the power imbalance between Indigenous Australians and the rest of society be addressed Taking a comparative approach and drawing upon the experience of other jurisdictions the book proposes a comprehensive constitutional reform programme and includes the text of constitutional amendments designed to achieve the realisation of the rights of Australia's Indigenous peoples It ends with a call to improve the standard of civics education so as to overcome voter apprehension towards constitutional change
