

Using Organic Fertilizers

There are two types of fertilizers: synthetic and organic. Synthetic fertilizers are made from chemical compounds and provide a quick boost of nutrients to your plants. Organic fertilizers, on the other hand, are made from natural materials like compost, manure, and bone meal. They release nutrients more slowly and improve the soil's structure and ability to hold water.

When using organic fertilizers, it's important to follow the instructions on the package. Some organic fertilizers need to be applied to the soil, while others can be mixed into your plants' watering routine. Organic fertilizers are also safer for your pets and the environment.

Ponds and Marshes for Wild Ducks on Farms and Ranches in the Northern Plains Wade H. Hamor,Hans G. Uhlig,1968
Regardless of where you live in the northern Plains chances are good that you can attract wild ducks to your farm or ranch To do so you may need to build a pond or marsh or improve the ones you now have The center of wild duck production in the United States is in the northern Plains and includes parts of North Dakota South Dakota Minnesota Montana Wyoming Colorado Nebraska and Iowa The numerous natural and man made ponds and marshes along with fertile soil and favorable climate make this a region of ideal duck habitat Many of these ponds and marshes are not producing ducks at their full potential Some are too shallow some are choked with emergent plants and others are low in food and cover Correcting these deficiencies can make the duck production of this region even greater than it is Page 3
