Perspectives in Vernacular Architecture Camille Wells, 1986 Eco-architecture II Geoffrey Broadbent, C. A. Brebbia, 2008 This book contains papers presented at the second International Conference on Eco Architecture The original Conference was the first to be held worldwide on the subject of sustainable architecture in order to define what ECO ARCHITECTURE actually is i.e. Harmonisation between Architecture and Nature The subject has matured in the two years between conferences and the submitted papers can be categorised into Ecological and Cultural Sensitivity Design with Nature Resource Conservation and Building Technology Design by Passive Systems Case Studies Rehabilitation and Adaptive Re use The affiliations of the authors whether in academia the professions or industry indicate the very wide international scope and the interdisciplinary nature of the subject Buildings and Landscapes 22. 2 Anna Vemer Andrzejewski, Cynthia G. Falk, 2015-12-31 Islamic Heritage Architecture and Art II G Passerini, 2018-07-18 Papers presented at the 2nd International Conference on Islamic Heritage Architecture and Art are contained in this volume The conference attracted important research highlighting the significance of Islamic heritage architecture and art to the world and its influence across different regions The papers deal with the design of many types of buildings in Islamic countries including not only the better known public buildings like mosques mausolea citadels and forts but also houses and gardens engineering works such as bridges and dams irrigation systems and many others which have also had a profound impact on society Traditional architecture and urban environment in most Islamic countries is now being eroded by overemphasis on a global type of architecture and city planning As a consequence many regions are losing their identity The included studies review these developments in the light of what classical Islamic urban design and architecture has to offer modern society Research contained in this book provides an analysis of the materials employed and the types of structural elements used particularly those unique to Islamic architecture Associated topics covered include music textiles and ceramics which are essential parts of the architectural fabric Also looked at are construction materials including not only stone and brick but also more perishable materials like adobe wood and reeds The preservation of heritage features also requires the development of appropriate conservation techniques in response to the different materials used and the ways structural forms work including under extreme conditions such as earthquakes Academics researchers practitioners and government employees actively involved in the topic of Islamic heritage architecture and art will find this publication of interest Shaping Communities Carter L. A. Bremner, 2016-10-13 Throughout today s postcolonial world buildings monuments parks streets avenues entire cities even remain as witness to Britain s once impressive if troubled imperial past These structures are a conspicuous and near inescapable reminder of that past and therefore the built heritage of Britain s former colonial empire is a fundamental part of how we negotiate our postcolonial identities often lying at the heart of social tension and debate over how that identity is best represented This volume provides an overview of the architectural and urban transformations that took place across the British Empire between the seventeenth and mid twentieth centuries Although much research has been carried out on architecture and urban planning in Britain s empire in recent decades no single comprehensive reference source exists The essays compiled here remedy this deficiency With its extensive chronological and regional coverage by leading scholars in the field this volume will quickly become a seminal text for those who study teach and research the relationship between empire and the built environment in the British context It provides an up to date account of past and current historiographical approaches toward the study of British imperial and colonial architecture and urbanism and will prove equally useful to those who study architecture and urbanism in other European imperial and transnational contexts The volume is divided in two main sections The first section deals with overarching thematic issues including building typologies major genres and periods of activity networks of expertise and the transmission of ideas the intersection between planning and politics as well as the architectural impact of empire on Britain itself The second section builds on the first by discussing these themes in relation to specific geographical regions teasing out the variations and continuities observable in context both practical and theoretical Sites Unseen William A. Gleason, 2011-08-22 Sites Unseen examines the complex intertwining of race and architecture in nineteenth and early twentieth century American culture the period not only in which American architecture came of age professionally in the U S but also in which ideas about architecture became a prominent part of broader conversations about American culture history politics and although we have not yet understood this clearly race relations This rich and copiously illustrated interdisciplinary study explores the ways that American writing between roughly 1850 and 1930 concerned itself often intensely with the racial implications of architectural space primarily but not exclusively through domestic architecture In addition to identifying an archive of provocative primary materials Sites Unseen draws significantly on important recent scholarship in multiple fields ranging from literature history and material culture to architecture cultural geography and urban planning Together the chapters interrogate a variety of expressive American vernacular forms including the dialect tale the novel of empire letters and pulp stories along with the plantation cabin the West Indian cottage the Latin American plaza and the Oriental parlor These are some of the overlooked plots and structures that can and should inform a more comprehensive consideration of the literary and cultural meanings of American architecture Making sense of the relations between architecture race and American writing of the long nineteenth century in their regional national and hemispheric contexts Sites Unseen provides a clearer view not only of this catalytic era but also more broadly of what architectural historian Dell Upton has aptly termed the social experience of the built environment Living Downtown Paul Groth, 2023-11-15 From the palace hotels of the elite to cheap lodging houses residential hotels have been an element of American urban life for nearly two hundred years Since 1870 however they have been the target of an official war led by people whose concept of home does not include the hotel Do these residences constitute an essential housing resource or are they as charged a public nuisance Living Downtown the first comprehensive social and cultural history of life in American residential hotels adds a much needed historical perspective to this ongoing debate Creatively combining evidence from biographies buildings and urban neighborhoods workplace records and housing policies Paul Groth provides a definitive analysis of life in four price differentiated types of downtown residence He demonstrates that these hotels have played a valuable socioeconomic role as home to both long term residents and temporary laborers Also the convenience of hotels has made them the residence of choice for a surprising number of Americans from hobo author Boxcar Bertha to Calvin Coolidge Groth examines the social and cultural objections to hotel households and the increasing efforts to eliminate them which have led to the seemingly irrational destruction of millions of such housing units since 1960 He argues convincingly that these efforts have been a leading contributor to urban homelessness This highly original and timely work aims to expand the concept of the American home and to recast accepted notions about the relationships among urban life architecture and the public management of residential environments From the palace hotels of the elite to cheap lodging houses residential hotels have been an element of American urban life for nearly two hundred years Since 1870 however they have been the target of an official war led by people whose concept of home

The Encyclopedia of Housing, Second Edition Andrew T.

Carswell,2012-05-31 Since publication of the groundbreaking Encyclopedia of Housing in 1998 many issues have assumed special prominence within this field and indeed within the global economy For instance the global economic meltdown was spurred in large part by the worst subprime mortgage crisis we ve seen in our history On a more positive note the sustainability movement and green development has picked up considerable steam and given the priorities and initiatives of the current U S administration this will only grow in importance and increased attention has been given in recent years to the topic of indoor air quality Within the past decade as well the Baby Boom Generation began its march into retirement and senior citizenship which will have increasingly broad implications for retirement communities and housing assisted living facilities aging in place livable communities universal design and the like Finally within the last twelve years an emerging generation of young scholars has been making significant contributions to the field For all these reasons and more we are pleased to present a significantly updated and expanded Second Edition of The Encyclopedia of Housing

French Encounters with the American Counterculture 1960-1980 Caroline Maniaque-Benton, 2016-12-05 French American interrelationships in the areas of design and creative thinking have been under acknowledged It is normally asserted that French architects looked to North America for technical lessons in the development of modern architecture in the 1960s but that the French cultural environment was generally hostile to American ideas This book includes interviews with French architects who visited the United States in the 1960s 1970s and then assumed influential positions in the press and education in France Some of these architects found in non mainstream America and its radical groups of architectural drop outs a liberating force free of the taint of American capitalism and the high investment technology Often living in alternative student communities they saw highly innovative low cost technical and structural systems placed in the service of collective forms of living which represented a critique not only of professional architectural practice but also of bourgeois forms of living Many of them also studied in American schools of architecture and came in contact with an intellectual and interdisciplinary style of architectural education unavailable in France at that time
