telerobots extend our corporeal agency into distant spaces In Here There Kris Paulsen examines telepresence technologies through the lens of contemporary artistic experiments from early video art through current drone vision works Paulsen traces an arc of increasing interactivity as video screens became spaces for communication and physical tactile intervention She explores the work of artists who took up these technological tools and questioned the aesthetic social and ethical stakes of media that allow us to manipulate and affect far off environments and other people to touch metaphorically and literally those who cannot touch us back Paulsen examines 1970s video artworks by Vito Acconci and Joan Jonas live satellite performance projects by Kit Galloway and Sherrie Rabinowitz and CCTV installations by Chris Burden These early works she argues can help us make sense of the expansion of our senses by technologies that privilege real time over real space and model strategies for engagement and interaction with mediated others They establish a political aesthetic and technological history for later works using cable TV infrastructures and the World Wide Web including telerobotic works by Ken Goldberg and Wafaa Bilal and artworks about military drones by Trevor Paglen Omar Fast Hito Steyerl and others These works become a meeting place for here and there

Reality TV Jon Kraszewski, 2017-02-24 From early first wave programs such as Candid Camera An American Family and The Real World to the shows on our television screens and portable devices today reality television consistently takes us to cities such as New York Los Angeles and Boston to imagine the place of urbanity in American culture and society Jon Kraszewski offers the first extended account of this phenomenon as he makes the politics of urban space the center of his history and theory of reality television Kraszewski situates reality television in a larger economic transformation that started in the 1980s when America went from an industrial economy when cities were home to all classes to its post industrial economy as cities became key points in a web of global financing expelling all economic classes except the elite and the poor Reality television in the industrial era reworked social relationships based on class race and gender for liberatory purposes which resulted in an egalitarian ethos in the genre However reality television of the post industrial era attempts to convince viewers that cities still serve their interests even though most viewers find city life today economically untenable Each chapter uses a key theoretical concept from spatial theory such as power geometries diasporic nostalgia orientalism the imagination of social expulsions and the relationship between the country and the city to illuminate the way reality television engages this larger transformation of urban space in America
