The Perfect Genre. Drama and Painting in Renaissance Italy Kristin Phillips-Court,2016-12-05 Proposing an original and important reconceptualization of Italian Renaissance drama Kristin Phillips Court here explores how the intertextuality of major works of Italian dramatic literature is not only poetic but also figurative She argues that not only did the painterly gaze so prevalent in fifteenth and sixteenth century devotional art portraiture and visual allegory inform humanistic theories practices and themes it also led prominent Italian intellectuals to write visually evocative works of dramatic literature whose topical plots and structures provide only a fraction of their cultural significance Through a combination of interpretive literary criticism art historical analysis and cultural and intellectual historiography Phillips Court offers detailed readings of individual plays juxtaposed with specific developments and achievements in the realm of painting Revealing more than historical connections between artists and poets such as Tasso and Giorgione Mantegna and Trissino Michelangelo and Caro or Bruno and Caravaggio the author locates the history of Renaissance art and drama securely within the history of ideas She provides us with a story about the emergence and eventual disintegration of Italian Renaissance drama as a rigorously philosophical and empirical form Considering rhetorical philosophical ethical religious political ideological and aesthetic dimensions of each of the plays she treats Kristin Phillips Court draws our attention to the intermedial conversation between the theater and painting in a culture famously dominated by art Her integrated analysis of visual and dramatic works brings to light how the lines and verses of the text reveal an ongoing dialogue with visual art that was far richer and more intellectually engaged than we might reconstruct from stage diagrams and painted backdrops
