Dying in America Institute of Medicine, Committee on Approaching Death: Addressing Key End-of-Life Issues, 2015-03-19 For patients and their loved ones no care decisions are more profound than those made near the end of life Unfortunately the experience of dying in the United States is often characterized by fragmented care inadequate treatment of distressing symptoms frequent transitions among care settings and enormous care responsibilities for families According to this report the current health care system of rendering more intensive services than are necessary and desired by patients and the lack of coordination among programs increases risks to patients and creates avoidable burdens on them and their families Dying in America is a study of the current state of health care for persons of all ages who are nearing the end of life Death is not a strictly medical event Ideally health care for those nearing the end of life harmonizes with social psychological and spiritual support All people with advanced illnesses who may be approaching the end of life are entitled to access to high quality compassionate evidence based care consistent with their wishes Dying in America evaluates strategies to integrate care into a person and family centered team based framework and makes recommendations to create a system that coordinates care and supports and respects the choices of patients and their families The findings and recommendations of this report will address the needs of patients and their families and assist policy makers clinicians and their educational and credentialing bodies leaders of health care delivery and financing organizations researchers public and private funders religious and community leaders advocates of better care journalists and the public to provide the best care possible for people nearing the end of life

The Uncanny Valley Hypothesis and Beyond Marcus Cheetham, 2018-05-02 A field of theory and research is evolving around the question highlighted in the Uncanny Valley Hypothesis How does high realism in anthropomorphic design influence human experience and behaviour The Uncanny Valley Hypothesis posits that a very humanlike character or object e g robot prosthetic limb doll can evoke a negative affective i e uncanny state Recent advances in robotic and computer graphic technologies in simulating aspects of human appearance behaviour and interaction have been accompanied therefore by theorising and research on the meaning and relevance of the Uncanny Valley Hypothesis for anthropomorphic design Current understanding of the uncanny idea is still fragmentary and further original research is needed However the emerging picture indicates that the relationship between humanlike realism and subjective experience and behaviour may not be as straightforward as the Uncanny Valley Hypothesis suggests This Research Topic brings together researchers from traditionally separate domains including robotics computer graphics cognitive science psychology and neuroscience to provide a snapshot of current work in this field A diversity of issues and questions are addressed in contributions that include original research review theory and opinion papers Annals of the Carnegie Museum, 2013
