

SOCIAL NETWORKING

A very good evening to my English teacher PN Siti Munirah and my fellow friends. Today on this fine evening I would like talk about 'Social Networking'

Human beings by and large are social. They feel an inherent need to connect and expand their connections. There is a deep rooted need among humans to share.

In the past, due to geographical distances and economic concerns, connections between people were limited. A social network is made up of individuals that are connected to one another by a particular type of interdependency. It could be ideas, values, trade, anything.

Social networks operate on many levels. Initially social networking happened at family functions where all relative and friends would conglomerate under one roof.

Social networking has always been prevalent; it is just that in these times the face of social networking has changed. Where earlier the process was long drawn, involving a chain movement where in one person led to another through a web of social contacts, today the process is highly specialized.

Communication has been instrumental to a large extent to the growth of social networking. With the advent of Internet and the cell phone a lot of social interaction is captured through email and instant messaging.

Today there are a lot of online social networking sites where individuals volunteer information about themselves and their social networks. Social networking allows for like- minded people to interact with another.

An online social networking site is a place where a user can create a profile and build a personal network that connects the user to other users. What used to be just a niche activity has today taken the proportions of a global phenomenon that engages tens of millions of Internet users.

systems are usually characterized by the complex network structures and rich accompanying contextual information. Researchers are increasingly interested in addressing a wide range of challenges residing in these disparate social network systems including identifying common static topological properties and dynamic properties during the formation and evolution of these social networks and how contextual information can help in analyzing the pertaining social networks. These issues have important implications on community discovery, anomaly detection, trend prediction and can enhance applications in multiple domains such as information retrieval, recommendation systems, security and so on.

Social Networks John Scott, 2002. This collection brings together the principal sources in the development of the techniques of social network analysis from early metaphorical statements in Simmel and Radcliffe Brown through the more systematic explorations in sociology and social anthropology to contemporary formalizations. A new introduction explores the history of Social Networks and highlights the arguments of those who treat social network analysis as a loose qualitative approach as well as those who see its potential in technical mathematical uses. The thematically organized coverage includes Part I Conceptualizing Social Networks, Part II Topics and Developments in Graph Theory, Part III Further Mathematical Models for Networks, Part IV Applications: Family and Community, Part V Applications: Corporate Power and Economic Structures, Part VI Applications: Political Protest and Policy Networks, Part VII Applications: Knowledge, Reputation and Diffusion.

Education and Technology for a Better World Arthur Tatnall, Anthony Jones, 2009-07-03. Education and Technology for a Better World was the main theme for WCCE 2009. The conference highlights and explores different perspectives of this theme covering all levels of formal education as well as informal learning and societal aspects of education. The conference was open to everyone involved in education and training. Additionally, players from technological, societal, business and political fields outside education were invited to make relevant contributions within the theme Education and Technology for a Better World. For several years the WCCE World Conference on Computers in Education has brought benefits to the fields of computer science and computers and education as well as to their communities. The contributions at WCCE include research projects and good practice presented in different formats from full papers to posters, demonstrations, panels, workshops and symposiums. The focus is not only on presentations of accepted contributions but also on discussions and input from all participants. The main goal of these conferences is to provide a forum for the discussion of ideas in all areas of computer science and human learning. They create a unique environment in which researchers and practitioners in the fields of computer science and human learning can interact, exchanging theories, experiments, techniques, applications and evaluations of initiatives supporting new developments that are potentially relevant for the development of these fields. They intend to serve as reference guidelines for the research community.
