

LOYALTY FROM A CONFUCIAN PERSPECTIVE

The text is considered to be amongst the most studied and widely read in Chinese community. It provides a developing account of the culture and perceptions of the different dimensions of life that the people see as fundamental in culturing of ethical and well-cultivated personalities. The author is an ardent ambassador of traditions of Zhou people in the court conduct and all spheres of life (Eno). The researcher studied the Zhou heritage and became knowledgeable, his intention being to re-establish societal norms to their previous virtues. He had a strong belief that a country's welfare relied on the values of its humans, starting foremost with its leadership. He had a strong assertion that people should cultivate virtues, honor for their neighbors and live responsibly by taking up roles that ensure societal development. The scholar therefore, established himself as a teacher, editor, and philosopher; teaching young people ethics, proper communication and demonstration of integrity in all matters of life; he trained literature, musical arts and ritual; issues he considered important to the culture.

He insisted that there was a need for a balance of studying and reflection playing a crucial role in the development of an individual. He had confidence when children were raised with the proper values then it would be easy for them to obey as adults. He is convinced that humanity only guarantees love and not hate, he, therefore, advises his followers to set their hearts on the kindness of humanity. Through his teachings, students were motivated in their innate abilities to become better to achieve the aspirations they have in their lives through hard work. Acts of valor were encouraged by young people in the community (Eno 78). Risks taken for a worthy cause were viewed as heroic and gestures to be celebrated in society (Eno 74). He tells Zilu "You's love of valor exceeds mine; there is nowhere to get the lumber" (Eno 19).

He believes that the state has the mandate to provide employment for all its citizens. Throughout the book, he encourages rulers to govern with virtue and align the inhabitants with the rituals of Zhou (Eno 5). He uses the leadership model of prime minister Yan Pingzhong as one that should be adopted by successive regimes, he is certain that leaders need to interact with the masses they lead to show respect (Eno 21). These sentiments are made at a time when warlords have taken the leadership of the state of Lu from the dukes. He describes Zichan as respectful, righteous, generous and reverent (Eno 21). To him, these were fundamental traits that people in positions of influence needed to have to ensure that they demonstrated ethics and virtues in their leadership. Teachings from him on good governance ensured that a society where rulers had respect for those ruled was created; dwellers in positions of power were expected to be just and to show ethics in their leadership.

lasting distinction Reclaiming these men for posterity Jordan reveals that even as they endured the horrible extremes of war the Ohioans contemplated the deeper meanings of the conflict at every turn from personal questions of citizenship and belonging to the overriding matter of slavery and emancipation Based on prodigious new research including diaries letters and unpublished memoirs A Thousand May Fall is a pioneering revelatory history that restores the common man and the immigrant striver to the center of the Civil War In our age of fractured politics and emboldened nativism Jordan forces us to confront the wrenching human realities and often forgotten stakes of the bloodiest episode in our nation s history Papers in Illinois History and Transactions for the Year ... ,1915 Born along the Color Line Eben Miller,2012-02-01 In August 1933 dozens of people gathered amid seven large canvas tents in a field near Amenia in upstate New York Joel Spingarn president of the board of the NAACP had called a conference to revitalize the flagging civil rights organization In Amenia such old lions as the 65 year old W E B DuBois would mingle with the coming leaders of Negro thought It was a fascinating encounter that would transform the civil rights movement With elegant writing and piercing insight historian Eben Miller narrates how this little known conference brought together a remarkable young group of African American activists capturing through the lives of five extraordinary participants youth activist Juanita Jackson diplomat Ralph Bunche economist Abram Harris lawyer Louis Redding and Harlem organizer Moran Weston how this generation shaped the ongoing movement for civil rights during the Depression World War II and beyond Miller describes how Jackson Bunche Harris and the others felt that amidst the global crisis of the 1930s it was urgent to move beyond the NAACP s legal and political focus to build an economic movement that reached across the racial divide to challenge the capitalist system that had collapsed so devastatingly They advocated alliances with labor groups agitated for equal education and campaigned for anti lynching legislation and open access to the ballot and employment spreading their influential ideas through their writings and by mass organizing in African American communities across the country North and South In their arguments and individual awakenings they formed a key bridge between the turn of the century Talented Tenth and the postwar civil rights generation broadening and advancing the fight for racial equality through the darkest economic times the country has ever faced In Born along the Color Line Miller vividly captures the emergence of a forgotten generation of African American leaders a generation that made Brown v Board of Education and all that followed from it possible It is an illuminating portrait of the long civil rights movement not the movement that began in the 1950s but the one that took on new life at Amenia in 1933
