

“The Cycle of Socialization” by Harro

✓ Exclusively available on IvyPanda

The article entitled “The cycle of socialization” by Harro discusses the nature of people’s prejudices, looks at how they are developed and what factors influence the formation of people’s assumptions and stances. The article is written in a context of the ongoing globalization processes, where the notions of good and evil often become labels that serve to underpin elites’ power and the authority of corporations. Harro’s work may be interesting not only for sociologists but for a wide range of readers, as it is written in a simple language. This work aims to make people see how their prejudices are formed and which processes strengthen and elaborate their unquestionable truths. Thus, any individual may get a glimpse of the processes of socialization that lie at the core of his values and prejudices. The article provides an insight into how these stances may be changed if people make an effort to understand themselves.

When a person is born, he has no notion of the established norms and traditions; he does not choose to be born into them, but they are imposed on him as he grows up. People do not choose their parents and the society they grow in, their physical features and abilities. However, people are labeled from the start by being aligned with the agent or target societal groups (Harro, 2000). Agent groups are those who have more power and can label others. Target groups are disadvantaged people who suffer from all kinds of discrimination.

The article asserts that every person has many social identities which evolve through the cycle of socialization. These identities reflect a person’s age, gender, race, and other characteristics, and each of them acquires some value in the socialization process (Harro, 2000). The cycle of socialization comprises first socialization, institutional and cultural socialization, enforcements, and results that pave the way for actions and direction for change.

First socialization is social norms that parents teach to their children and that form children’s self-perceptions and thoughts about the future. Children are taught to adhere to certain rules accepted in their families. As a child grows, the number of social institutions he is influenced by grows. Schools and social institutions all impose their rules on individuals and form stances and perceptions that are later difficult to discard
