The Civil Rights Movement

The Civil Rights Movement is known as a period of time in the 1950s and 1960s that really began about 100 years earlier, after the American Civil War. The Civil Rights Movement occurred because of the desire for racial equality after the end of slavery in America.

After the Civil War, the American South was a very racist place. There were many segregation laws, which meant people were kept separate. There were segregation laws for schools and public places, as well as laws that kept people from voting. There were also laws that kept people from getting married.

One of the first Black children to desegregate schools in the South was Ruby Bridges. She was the only Black child to go to an all-white elementary school in New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1960.

Ruby's father, a Black man, was a member of the NAACP. He was a leader in the Civil Rights Movement. He was a member of the NAACP, which was a group of people who fought for the rights of Black people.

MOVIE STUDY GUIDE

When a single day of school was the hardest thing to do, Ruby Bridges was a young girl who had the opportunity to be a leader. She graduated from a desegregated high school, became a model agent, and built a family of her own.

As an adult, Ruby continued to be a leader. She was a member of the NAACP and worked on issues for desegregation and for children's education. In 1990, she established
