In the anatomical position, the anterior and medial are on the front body surface, the posterior and shoulder blades are on the back surface, and the sides of the head are the lateral parts of the body. The nose, eye, ear, and mouth are the structures anterior to the nose. The trachea is anterior to the vertical column (spine), and the stomach is anterior to the shoulder but posterior to the fingers. The thoracic cavity is anterior to the diaphragmatic cavity and superior to the spinal cavity. In humans, the ventral surface can also be called the anterior surface. However, in quadruped animals, the ventral surface is the bottom surface.

If an ionization only has the large (the negative) and infinite parts, the section is a $\frac{1}{2}$ section; but if the large is cut so that anterior and posterior portions remain, the section is a $\frac{3}{4}$ section. You can hold it out a dissection animal along two planes so that the lungs are observable in both sections. The two sections that meet this requirement are the $\frac{1}{2}$ and $\frac{3}{4}$ sections.
