that later proved unsuitable because of persistence bioaccumulation toxicity or other concerns Chemical alternative assessments are tools designed to facilitate consideration of these factors to assist stakeholders in identifying chemicals that may have the greatest likelihood of harm to human and ecological health and to provide guidance on how the industry may develop and adopt safer alternatives A Framework to Guide Selection of Chemical Alternatives develops and demonstrates a decision framework for evaluating potentially safer substitute chemicals as primarily determined by human health and ecological risks This new framework is informed by previous efforts by regulatory agencies academic institutions and others to develop alternative assessment frameworks that could be operationalized In addition to hazard assessments the framework incorporates steps for life cycle thinking which considers possible impacts of a chemical at all stages including production use and disposal as well as steps for performance and economic assessments The report also highlights how modern information sources such as computational modeling can supplement traditional toxicology data in the assessment process This new framework allows the evaluation of the full range of benefits and shortcomings of substitutes and examination of tradeoffs between these risks and factors such as product functionality product efficacy process safety and resource use Through case studies this report demonstrates how different users in contrasting decision contexts with diverse priorities can apply the framework This report will be an essential resource to the chemical industry environmentalists ecologists and state and local governments

Smog in our brains: Gender differences in the impact of exposure to air pollution on cognitive performance in China Chen, Xi,Zhang, Xiaobo,Zhang, Xin,2017-03-11 While there is a large body of literature on the negative health effects of air pollution there is much less written about its effects on cognitive performance for the whole population This paper studies the effects of contemporaneous and cumulative exposure to air pollution on cognitive performance based on a nationally representative survey in China By merging a longitudinal sample at the individual level with local air quality data according to the exact dates and counties of interviews we find that contemporaneous and cumulative exposure to air pollution impedes both verbal and math scores of survey subjects Interestingly the negative effect is stronger for men than for women Specifically the gender difference is more salient among the old and less educated in both verbal and math tests
