Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not exercise regularly, and the training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 12-week training program. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The results showed that the training group had a significantly lower HR and HRR at rest and during maximal exercise compared to the control group at the end of the 12-week training program. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will increase its output level. This is because the producer will find it more profitable to produce more of the output. Conversely, if the price of the output falls, the producer will decrease its output level. This is because the producer will find it less profitable to produce less of the output.
