Prove that irony exists in the play

In the play "Proof" by David Auburn, events unravel in the house of a mathematical genius Robert, who has been suffering from mental illness. His daughter Catherine is living with him in order to take care of. The first element of irony is presented in the very beginning. Readers do not know the fact that Robert is already dead, and the whole dialogue between him and Catherine regarding her birthday is a part of Catherine's delusion. Secondly, the way Robert's work in his latest year is presented ambiguously by different characters. When Hal, one of Robert's students, find a notebook with very important mathematical proof, he is excited with the idea that "while everyone thought he [Robert] was crazy... or barely functioning... he was doing some of the most important mathematics in the world." (Auburn, 2001). Catherine claims that she wrote this proof and in Catherine's flashback, readers are presented with a situation, where Robert is delusional and wrote nonsensical rambling paragraphs equating cold, winter, and books. Finally, the irony is in dialogues. When Claire persuades Catherine to move to New York and tells her about all the opportunities there, Catherine responds about an expensive Freudian psychiatrist, who will listen to her as she blames all of her problems on Claire, which is ironic (Auburn, 2001). Therefore, the novel contains elements of irony in both, the plot and the dialogues.
