

Final Section of the Principles of Learning and Teaching (POLT)

Section One: Students as Learners (EONC)

Human Developments

- The role of the teacher has not only expanded to teaching their minds, but also to providing learning opportunities that support their physical, social, emotional, linguistic, cognitive, and aesthetic development.
- Students' heredity, environment, and interactions will affect their development; referred to as nature, nurture.

Self concept:

- A general idea concerning how we think about ourselves.
- It is developed through actions, reflection, and interactions with others- especially with respect to expectations of self and others
- Influenced by professor behaviors

Self-esteem

- How we feel about or value ourselves- measuring the components of self concept.
- Fostering self-esteem in the classroom by providing students with:
  - o Acceptance- identifying strengths and weaknesses
  - o Help- setting realistic goals for them
  - o Trust- encouraging alone time with personal thoughts and feelings
  - o Trust- asking other students what is right and wrong
  - o Respect- being proud of who they think they are
  - o Love- learning to love their uniqueness and accepting your successes and failures
  - o Praise and encouragement- taking pride in all their achievements.

Important theories

Piaget:

- Theorist who worked on the development of thinking
- Observed infants and found that as they explored the objects in their environment- they gained knowledge of the world around them. He called these skills schemas.
  - o When the infant used the schema to describe a new object- Piaget called this assimilation, or interpreting a new experience through current ways of understanding.
  - o When the infant tried the old schema on a new object and modified it to fit it- the new subject and he re-categorized- he called it accommodation.
  - o However, an unpleasant state of disequilibrium occurs when new information cannot be fitted into existing schemas (assimilation).
  - o Equilibration is the force which drives the learning process as he tries not to be frustrated and self-worth returns balanced by mastering the new challenge (accommodation).
  - o "The goal is to reach equilibrium"
