How Humans Recognize Objects:

Segmentation, Categorization and Individual Identification Chris Fields, 2016-08-18 Human beings experience a world of objects bounded entities that occupy space and persist through time Our actions are directed toward objects and our language describes objects We categorize objects into kinds that have different typical properties and behaviors We regard some kinds of objects each other for example as animate agents capable of independent experience and action while we regard other kinds of objects as inert We re identify objects immediately and without conscious deliberation after days or even years of non observation and often following changes in the features locations or contexts of the objects being re identified Comparative developmental and adult observations using a variety of approaches and methods have yielded a detailed understanding of object detection and recognition by the visual system and an advancing understanding of haptic and auditory information processing Many fundamental questions however remain unanswered What for example physically constitutes an object How do specific classically characterizable object boundaries emerge from the physical dynamics described by quantum theory and can this emergence process be described independently of any assumptions regarding the perceptual capabilities of observers How are visual motion and feature information combined to create object information How are the object trajectories that indicate persistence to human observers implemented and how are these trajectory representations bound to feature representations How for example are point light walkers recognized as single objects How are conflicts between trajectory driven and feature driven identifications of objects resolved for example in multiple object tracking situations Are there separate what and where processing streams for haptic and auditory perception Are there haptic and or auditory equivalents of the visual object file Are there equivalents of the visual object token How are object identification conflicts between different perceptual systems resolved Is the common assumption that persistent object is a fundamental innate category justified How does the ability to identify and categorize objects relate to the ability to name and describe them using language How are features that an individual object had in the past but does not have currently represented How are categorical constraints on how objects move or act represented and how do such constraints influence categorization and the re identification of individuals How do human beings re identify objects including each other as persistent individuals across changes in location context and features even after gaps in observation lasting months or years How do human capabilities for object categorization and re identification over time relate to those of other species and how do human infants develop these capabilities What can modeling approaches such as cognitive robotics tell us about the answers to these questions Primary research reports reviews and hypothesis and theory papers addressing questions relevant to the understanding of perceptual object segmentation categorization and individual identification at any scale and from any experimental or modeling perspective are solicited for this Research Topic Papers that review particular sets of issues from multiple disciplinary perspectives or that advance integrative hypotheses or models that take data from multiple experimental approaches into account are especially encouraged

Planning and Design for Sustainable Urban Mobility Un-Habitat,2013-10-30 Urban transport systems worldwide are faced by a multitude of challenges Among the most visible of these are the traffic gridlocks experienced on city roads and highways all over the world The prescribed solution to transport problems in most cities has thus been to build more infrastructures for cars with a limited number of cities improving public transport systems in a sustainable manner However a number of challenges faced by urban transport systems such as greenhouse gas emissions noise and air pollution and road traffic accidents do not necessarily get solved by the construction of new infrastructure Planning and Design for Sustainable Urban Mobility argues that the development of sustainable urban transport systems requires a conceptual leap The purpose of transportation and mobility is to gain access to destinations activities services and goods Thus access is the ultimate objective of transportation As a result urban planning and design should focus on how to bring people and places together by creating cities that focus on accessibility rather than simply increasing the length of urban transport infrastructure or increasing the movement of people or goods Urban form and the functionality of the city are therefore a major focus of this report which highlights the importance of integrated land use and transport planning This new report of the United Nations

Human Settlements Programme UN Habitat the world's leading authority on urban issues provides some thought provoking insights and policy recommendations on how to plan and design sustainable urban mobility systems The Global Report on Human Settlements is the most authoritative and up to date global assessment of human settlements conditions and trends Preceding issues of the report have addressed such topics as Cities in a Globalizing World The Challenge of Slums Financing Urban Shelter Enhancing Urban Safety and Security Planning Sustainable Cities and Cities and Climate Change

Sessional Papers, 1918 Report of the Dominion fishery commission on the fisheries of the province of Ontario 1893 issued as vol 26 no 7 supplement The Bank Culture Debate Huw Macartney, 2019-09-12 The period since the Global Financial Crisis and numerous scandals have exposed some areas of serious illegal and unethical conduct within western banking systems Despite extensive reforms it is increasingly apparent however that there is a persistent problem with the culture of banking in Anglo America US and UK state managers made substantial efforts to reform the culture of their banking sectors However this book argues that they focused on an extremely narrow definition of bank culture They did so for two reasons firstly because the structural pressures of financialization which are a far more important driver of the problematic features of bank culture in Anglo America are harder to remedy but secondly state managers also used their bank culture response to tackle a legitimacy crisis facing their institutions of government In so doing they abdicated responsibility for the real problems of inequality and instability associated with their respective financial systems Drawing on interviews with more than 150 individuals working in financial services as well as regulators politicians and lawyers The Bank Culture Debate explains the strategies employed by state managers before then examining what has and has not changed in the culture of banking in the US and UK Agricultural Development and Food Security in Africa Renu Modi, Fantu Cheru, 2013-08-08 The subject of food security and land issues in Africa has become one of increased importance and contention over recent years In particular the focus has shifted to the role new global South donors especially India China and Brazil are playing in shaping African agriculture through their increased involvement and investment in the continent Approaching the topic through the framework of South South co operation this highly original volume presents a critical analysis of the ways in which Chinese Indian and Brazilian engagements in African agriculture are structured and implemented Do these investments have the potential to create new opportunities to improve local living standards transfer new technology and knowhow to African producers and reverse the persistent productivity decline in African agriculture Or will they simply aggravate the problem of food insecurity by accelerating the process of land alienation and displacement of local people from their land Topical and comprehensive Agricultural Development and Food Security in Africa offers fresh insight into a set of relationships that will shape both Africa and the world over the coming decades The Pall Mall Budget, 1885 Big Jim Eastland J. Lee Annis Jr., 2016-07-21 For decades after the Second World War Senator James O Eastland 1904 1986 was one of the more intransigent leaders of the Deep South's resistance to what he called the Second

Reconstruction And yet he developed late in his life a very real friendship with state NAACP chair Aaron Henry Big Jim Eastland provides the life story of this savvy unpredictable powerhouse From 1947 to 1978 Eastland wore that image of resistance proudly even while recognizing from the beginning his was the losing side Biographer J Lee Annis Jr chronicles such complexities extensively and also delves into many facets lesser known to the general public Born in the Mississippi Delta as part of the elite planter class Eastland was appointed to the US Senate in 1941 by Democratic Governor Paul B Johnson Sr Eastland ran for and won the Senate seat outright in 1942 and served in the Senate from 1943 until his retirement in 1978 A blunt man of few words but many contradictions Eastland was an important player in Washington from his initial stint in 1941 where he rapidly salvaged several key local projects from bungling intervention to the 1970s when he shepherded the Supreme Court nominees of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford to Senate confirmation Annis paints a full picture of the man describing the objections Eastland raised to civil rights proposals and the eventual accommodations he needed to accept after the passage of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 Scientific Papers of the Bureau of Standards United States.
