User's guide for RAM D. Bruce Turner, Joan Hrenko Novak, 1978 NATFREQ Users Manual Wilfred D. Iwan, 1984

This manual describes a computer program that has been developed to calculate natural frequencies and mode shapes of taut cables with attached masses and spring mass combinations. The equations of motion are solved by an iterative technique allowing accurate calculation even for extremely high mode numbers. The approach has the advantages that it is fast, accurate, and can easily accommodate a variety of system configurations including bodies attached to the cable. This document covers the theory used in the development of the code. Line by line descriptions of both the input and output data are given and several examples illustrating the use of the program are included. Some of the difficulties that may be encountered when running large complex problems are discussed and possible solutions proposed. The structure of the program is described in moderate detail. The program is written in a style which makes additions or modifications easy to implement. Author

Located in a narrow grassland corridor between the semi desert and a mountain range in Northwest China, the research area Urumqi Region is, despite its semi arid climate, in a relatively favourable hydrological situation. The nearby mountains provide water for settlements and agriculture, making human development possible in the first place. Due to the development of agriculture, population, and economy during the last sixty years, and the increasing water consumption, a demand and population driven water scarcity exists today and is expected to aggravate At the same time the effects of climate change and land use transformations on the hydrological system and the water availability are uncertain This study evaluates the recent and future situation by combining a hydrological water balance model for the simulation of the water supply based on scenarios of climate and land use change with a socio economic model for projecting the future water demand including predicted growth of population and economy
