REPORTING FINANCIAL INFORMATION

In CH6, we created a worksheet. We will now use the information from our worksheet to prepare financial statements.

The financial information needed by managers and owners to make good business decisions can be found in the general ledger accounts. However, the information in the general ledger is very detailed. To make this more usable, the information is ?

The area of accounting that reports information to external users is called ?.

NOTE: Examples of external users include ?

The area of accounting that reports to internal users is called ?.

NOTE: Examples of internal users include ?

All financial information must be reported if good business decisions are to be made. A financial statement with incomplete information is like a book with missing pages. The complete story is not told. The accounting concept ? is applied when financial statements contain all necessary information.

GAAP Concept: Full Disclosure

Financial statements contain all information necessary to understand a business's financial condition.

When a business is started, it is expected that the business will continue to operate indefinitely. The accounting concept ? is applied with this expectation.

GAAP Concept: Going Concern

Financial statements are prepared with the expectation that a business will remain in operation indefinitely.
