European Porcelain in The Metropolitan Museum of Art Jeffrey Munger, Elizabeth Sullivan, 2018-05-09 Porcelain imported from China was the most highly coveted new medium in sixteenth and early seventeenth century Europe Its pure white color translucency and durability as well as the delicacy of decoration were impossible to achieve in European earthenware and stoneware In response European ceramic factories set out to discover the process of producing porcelain in the Chinese manner with significant artistic technical and commercial ramifications for Britain and the Continent Indeed not only artisans but kings noble patrons and entrepreneurs all joined in the quest hoping to gain both prestige and profit from the enterprises they established This beautifully illustrated volume showcases ninety works that span the late sixteenth to the mid nineteenth century and reflect the major currents of European porcelain production Each work is illustrated with glorious new photography accompanied by analysis and interpretation by one of the leading experts in European decorative arts Among the wide range of porcelains selected are rare blue and white wares and figures from Italy superb examples from the Meissen factory in Germany and the Sèvres factory in France and ceramics produced by leading British eighteenth century artisans Taken together they reveal why the Metropolitan Museum's holdings in this field are among the finest in the world p p1

Agriculture and Industry in South-Eastern Roman Britain David Bird, 2016-12-31 The ancient counties surrounding the Weald in the SE corner of England have a strongly marked character of their own that has survived remarkably well in the face of ever increasing population pressure The area is however comparatively neglected in discussion of Roman Britain where it is often subsumed into a generalised treatment of the civilian part of Britannia that is based largely on other parts of the country This book aims to redress the balance The focus is particularly on Kent Surrey and Sussex account is taken of information from neighboring counties particularly when the difficult subsoils affect the availability of evidence An overview of the environment and a consideration of themes relevant to the South East as a whole accompany 14 papers covering the topics of rural settlement in each county crops querns and millstones animal exploitation salt production leatherworking the working of bone and similar materials the production of iron and iron objects non ferrous metalworking pottery production and the supply of tile to Roman London Agriculture and industry provides an up to date assessment of our knowledge of the southern hinterland of Roman London and an area that was particularly open to influences from the Continent

British Pottery: The First 3000 Years Alex Gibson, 2024-12-15 First comprehensive account of the sequence development and use of early prehistoric pottery in over 20 years Pottery was at the heart of the Neolithic package appearing in Britain with the first farmers around 4000 BC It arrived as a mature technology and was essential to the new largely sedentary lifestyle and economy It transformed storage and cooking practices and the earliest ceramics seem to have been essential equipment in the new practice of dairying The pottery changed over time and as a result ceramics have been fundamental to the construction of relative chronologies since the early days of modern archaeology Even with the development of absolute dating techniques the role of pottery as a dating tool has not diminished but instead has become refined and more accurate But pottery is not just a tool for dating the past it also represents a facet of prehistoric art and expression Starting simply ceramics became arguably the main medium for display with often complex designs Simple techniques motifs and panels are combined to create highly decorated vessels often of great individuality The use of inlays pastes and slips added contrasting colours to these vibrant designs By the end of the Neolithic ceramics became one of the major grave goods of British prehistory acting as accompaniments to those that warranted formal burial whether by inhumation or cremation This practice continued throughout the Early Bronze Age to the extents that lacking contemporary domestic sites most of the corpora of Early Bronze Age ceramics are largely sepulchral in context As we increasingly realise that burial rituals may have been varied and complex so the roles of these ceramics are becoming all the more questioned This book traces the 3000 years of ceramic use and development in Britain charting the changing forms and decorative techniques and the differing and changing roles that pottery played within its contemporary society

The Craft and Art of Clay Susan Peterson, Jan Peterson, 2003 Widely considered to be the most comprehensive introduction to ceramics available this book contains numerous step by step illustrations of various ceramic techniques to guide the beginner as well as inspirational ceramic pieces from contemporary potters from around the world For the more experienced ceramist there is a wealth of technical detail on things like glaze formulas and temperature conversions which make the book an ideal reference To quote one review I am a studio potter and would not be without it The fourth edition has been updated to include profiles of key ceramists who have influenced the field new material on marketing ceramics including using the internet more on the use of computers added coverage of paperclays using gold and alternative glazes
