THE EVIL CLERGYMAN

Danny Draven

The Evil Clergyman:

The Evil Clergyman H.P. Lovecraft, 2020-01-14 The story begins in the attic of an ancient house The narrator's companion refers to the former owner of the house and the presumably violent end that befell him He advises the narrator not to stay after dark or touch anything especially the small object on a table which the companion seems to fear considerably The narrator is then left alone in the attic he notes the many theological and classical books and one bookshelf in particular containing books on magic He feels a considerable curiosity for the forbidden object on the table The narrator finds a strange flashlight like device in his pocket that produces a peculiar violet glow He attempts to illuminate the object on the table with this strange light which he describes as being composed of particles The object makes a crackling sound like a sparking vacuum tube and takes on a pinkish glow with a vague white shape taking form from its center The narrator feeling that his surroundings are taking on strange new properties realizes that he is not alone the sinister newcomer is described as wearing clerical garb typical of the Anglican Church The newcomer begins throwing magical books into a fireplace

The Evil Clergyman Howard Phillips Lovecraft, 2018-04-24 Book The Evil Clergyman Biography Bibliography I was shown into the attic chamber by a grave intelligent looking man with quiet clothes and an iron gray beard who spoke to me in this fashion Yes he lived here but I don't advise your doing anything Your curiosity makes you irresponsible We never come here at night and it's only because of his will that we keep it this way You know what he did That abominable society took charge at last and we don't know where he is buried There was no way the law or anything else could reach the society I hope you won't stay till after dark And I beg of you to let that thing on the table the thing that looks like a match box alone We don't know what it is but we suspect it has something to do with what he did We even avoid looking at it very steadily

The Evil Clergyman Howard Phillips Lovecraft, 1939 The Evil Clergyman Говард Лавкрафт, 2022-01-29 The short story is actually an excerpt from a letter Lovecraft wrote It begins in the attic of an ancient house The narrator's companion refers to the former owner of the house and the presumably violent end that befell him He advises the narrator not to stay after dark or touch anything especially the small object on a table which the companion seems to fear considerably

Lovecraft, When I drew nigh the nameless city I knew it was accursed I was traveling in a parched and terrible valley under the moon and afar I saw it protruding uncannily above the sands as parts of a corpse may protrude from an ill made grave Fear spoke from the age worn stones of this hoary survivor of the deluge this great grandfather of the eldest pyramid and a viewless aura repelled me and bade me retreat from antique and sinister secrets that no man should see and no man else had dared to see Remote in the desert of Araby lies the nameless city crumbling and inarticulate its low walls nearly hidden by the sands of uncounted ages It must have been thus before the first stones of Memphis were laid and while the bricks of Babylon were yet unbaked There is no legend so old as to give it a name or to recall that it was ever alive but it is told of in whispers around campfires and muttered about by grandams in the tents of sheiks so that all the tribes shun it without wholly knowing why It was of this place that Abdul Alhazred the mad poet dreamed of the night before he sang his unexplained couplet That is not dead which can eternal lie And with strange aeons death may die I should have known that the Arabs had good reason for shunning the nameless city the city told of in strange tales but seen by no living man yet I defied them and went into the untrodden waste with my camel I alone have seen it and that is why no other face bears such hideous lines of fear as mine why no other man shivers so horribly when the night wind rattles the windows When I came upon it in the ghastly stillness of unending sleep it looked at me chilly from the rays of a cold moon amidst the desert's heat And as I returned its look I forgot my triumph at finding it and stopped still with my camel to wait for the dawn History of
