the War on Terror Changed the Way America Made War Ethan Brown, 2024-11-30 Brown has taken an incredibly complex subject and made it accessible and readable all while retaining the gravity of history and the sheer intensity of these battlefields. Airpower became a fundamental warfighting tool in the Global War on Terror and its success depended on the community of JTACs whose experiences populate this important work. They are the unsung heroes of the post 9/11 wars. America needs to meet David L. Goldfein, General, Ret. USAF, 21st Chief of Staff. With a new century and a new enemy came a new kind of war: low intensity and civilian dominated, blending austere rural and dense urban environments alike. Into this new kind of war, the American military launched two invasions against terrorist networks and military rivals, relying on airpower, close air support (CAS) at a scale never before seen in combat. The Global War on Terror was the CAS war. Forward Air Controllers were on the front lines from the very first moments of the war, directing airstrikes against enemies in their safe havens, safeguarding friendly forces and civilians alike to their utmost and achieving unprecedented success with limited resources. This volume captures the heroic accounts of the first Tactical Air Control Party (TACPs) in Afghanistan and Iraq and how Close Air Support fundamentally reshaped the American war machine in the first five years of the War on Terror.

Raunds Furnells Andy Boddington, 2014-06-15 On the south side of the river Nene in east Northamptonshire a settlement was established at Raunds in the sixth century AD. Some 300 years later the settlement was served by a small field church. Total and careful excavation ahead of twentieth century building development found in both the church and adjoining cemetery exceptional features the study of which has contributed to the archaeology of the churches of the liturgy and the burial practices of the Anglo Saxon period. The seeming simplicity of the church's beginnings was deceptive. Before the first church building had been standing long it proved too small; a chancel was added. Liturgical features were found which did not often survive elsewhere: a pot used as a sacrarium buried in front of the free standing altar and behind the altar; a clergy bench. The boundaries of a graveyard were established around the church. Many of the earliest burials were preserved undisturbed by later inhumation. The congregation buried its dead in ordered zones: the earliest dominated by a plot perhaps a founder's grave distinguished by an elaborately carved stone grave cover, possibly also by a standing cross. In the last years of the graveyard's use burials of young children took place in an eaves drip zone flanking the church walls. Much information was retrieved about the population who for two centuries used the church about their physical health and about their very varied burial practices. Although a larger church was later built on the site it was soon abandoned and subsequently adapted for secular use as part of a manorial complex. The site of the graveyard was forgotten. In context the church and cemetery represent one phase in the development of the Raunds landscape between prehistory and the present day. This excavation provided the stimulus for detailed archaeological survey of the Raunds area, resulting in the establishment of the Raunds Area Project, managed jointly by the Northamptonshire Archaeology Unit and English Heritage. This volume is the Project's first report.
