Lesson 2 Life During the Great Depression

Student Background Information

Students should know that the Great Depression began when stock prices crashed and led to the worst economic downturn in the history of the United States.

1. The Beginning of the Depression

- a. In 1929, the stock market crashed, leading to a series of events that caused the economy to collapse. The stock market crashed on _____, known as _____.
- b. The crash led to a loss of confidence in the economy, and many people lost their jobs. The economy began to shrink, and the government had to take action to help the economy.
- c. The government passed the Emergency Banking Act, which gave the Federal Reserve the power to control the money supply. This helped to stabilize the banking system and prevent further bank failures.
- d. The government also passed the National Industrial Recovery Act, which set minimum wages and maximum hours for workers. This helped to improve the lives of many Americans who were struggling during the Depression.
- e. The government also passed the Social Security Act, which created a system of social security for the elderly and the disabled. This helped to provide a safety net for many Americans who were struggling during the Depression.

2. Life during the Depression

- a. During the Depression, many people lost their jobs and their homes. Many people were forced to live in shacks or tents, and many people were hungry. The government had to take action to help the people who were struggling during the Depression.
- b. The government passed the Federal Emergency Relief Act, which provided money to states to help the poor. This helped to provide food and shelter for many people who were struggling during the Depression.
- c. The government also passed the Civil Works Administration, which created jobs for the unemployed. This helped to provide income for many people who were struggling during the Depression.
- d. The government also passed the Public Works Administration, which created jobs for the unemployed. This helped to provide income for many people who were struggling during the Depression.
- e. The government also passed the National Youth Administration, which provided jobs and training for young people. This helped to provide income and skills for many young people who were struggling during the Depression.
- f. The government also passed the Federal Housing Administration, which provided loans to help people buy homes. This helped to provide housing for many people who were struggling during the Depression.
