In response to James Gleick's "The Information: A History, a Theory, a Flood" Clinton Rogers, 2022-02-23 Academic Paper from the year 2022 in the subject American Studies Literature grade 100 Fort Hays State University FHSU language English abstract In James Gleick s whirlwind tour of information theory The Information A History a Theory a Flood 2011 he states that We have made many towers of Babel This sentence seems to present us with a double meaning Having occurred after a list of the disambiguation links for the term Babel in Wikipedia the We have made many towers of Babel is a statement denoting the number of objects listed with the name Babel On another level the sentence could be a descriptive statement about the entirety of his book and the long history of information and technology in general This short and poignant biblical story no longer than ten or so lines describes a uniting of all the disparate people groups of the world into a single language that renders communication effortless and using the newest form of architectural technology bricks they attempt to build a tower to the heavens This could be interpreted as an attempt to build towards the highest ideal for mankind or an attempt at meaning making God rewarded their hubris with a confounding of their language But it didn t have to be God who obstructed their great project because language itself has proven to be of such an unruly character We are still building our technological towers of Babel and humanity remains confounded in the process Gleick states Wikipedia evolves dendritically sending off new shoots in many directions In this it resembles the universe Gleick 2011 Discreetly hidden among a description of the transmogrification of the Wikipedia site which had proved to be an unprecedented source of information for its transmission and utility this phrase on a number of levels seems to encapsulate the evolution of our relationship to information and the many twists and turns angles and blind spots that this story takes The analogy of the dendrite is also an apt description of two of the most complex and mysterious systems of information known to man the telescopic images of the cosmic networks of galaxies and the microscopic weblike network of neurons in the human brain The universe of entangled facts to be searched and processed for meaning is the way we view the objective world With every bit of information integrated we form new understandings and our knowledge branches out into ever new directions

The Literature of Exclusion Andrew C. Wenaus,2021-05-05 In the early twentieth century the Dadaists protested against art nationalism the individual subject and technologized war With their automatic anti art and cultural disruptiveness Dadaists sought to signify no thing Today data also operates autonomously However rather than dismantling tradition data organizes selects combines quantifies and simplifies the complexity of actuality Like Dada data also signifies nothing While Dadaists protest with purpose data proceeds without intention The individual in the early twentieth century agonizes over the alienation from daily life and the fear of being converted into a cog in a machine Today however the individual in twenty first century supermodernity merges not with large industrial machinery but with the processual and procedural logic of programming with innocuous ease Both exclude human agency from self narration but to differing degrees of abstraction Examining the work of B R Yeager Samuel Beckett Jeff Noon Kenji Siratori Mike Bonsall Allison Parrish and narratives written by artificial intelligence Wenaus considers the threshold of sensible narration and the effects that the shift from a culture of language to a culture of digital code has on lived experience While data offers a closed system Dadaist literature of exclusion he suggests promises a future of open hyper contingent unprescribed alternatives for self narration

A History of the World in 12 Maps Jerry Brotton, 2014-10-28 A New York Times Bestseller Maps allow the armchair traveler to roam the world the diplomat to argue his points the ruler to administer his country the warrior to plan his campaigns and the propagandist to boost his cause rich and beautiful Wall Street Journal Throughout history maps have been fundamental in shaping our view of the world and our place in it But far from being purely scientific objects maps of the world are unavoidably ideological and subjective intimately bound up with the systems of power and authority of particular times and places Mapmakers do not simply represent the world they construct it out of the ideas of their age In this scintillating book Jerry Brotton examines the significance of 12 maps from the almost mystical representations of ancient history to the satellite derived imagery of today He vividly recreates the environments and circumstances in which each of the maps was made showing how each conveys a highly individual view of the world Brotton shows how each of his maps both influenced and reflected contemporary events and how by considering it in all its nuances and omissions we can better understand the world that produced it Although the way we map our surroundings is more precise than ever before Brotton argues that maps today are no more definitive or objective than they have ever been Readers of this beautifully illustrated and masterfully argued book will never look at a map in quite the same way again A fascinating and panoramic new history of the cartographer s art The Guardian The intellectual background to these images is conveyed with beguiling erudition There is nothing more subversive than a map The Spectator A mesmerizing and beautifully illustrated book The Telegraph Logic of the Digital Aden Evens,2015-09-24 Building a foundational understanding of the digital Logic of the Digital reveals a unique digital ontology Beginning from formal and technical characteristics especially the binary code at the core of all digital technologies Aden Evens traces the pathways along which the digital domain of abstract logic encounters the material human world How does a code using only 0s and 1s give rise to the vast range of applications and information that constitutes a great and growing portion of our world Evens analysis shows how any encounter between the actual and the digital must cross an ontological divide a gap between the productive materiality of the human world and the reductive abstraction of the binary code Logic of the Digital examines the distortions of this ontological crossing considering the formal abstraction that persists in exemplary digital technologies and techniques such as the mouse the Web the graphical user interface and the development of software One crucial motive for this research lies in the paradoxical issue of creativity in relation to digital technologies the ontology of abstraction leaves little room for the unpredictable or accidental that is essential to creativity but digital technologies are nevertheless patently creative Evens inquires into the mechanisms by which the ostensibly sterile binary code can lend itself to such fecund cultural production Through clarification of the digital s ontological foundation Evens points to a significant threat to creativity lurking in the nature of the digital and so generates a basis for an ethics of digital practice Examining the bits that give the digital its ontology exploring the potentials and limitations of programming and using gaming as an ideal test of digital possibility Logic of the Digital guides future practices and shapes academic research in the digital Whole Earth Ann E. Davis,2022-07-04 This book takes a radical approach to ecological economics proposing a new paradigm based on earth systems science This book questions the foundation of economics on individual private property and proposes new forms of relationship to land and to the state It questions the foundation of economics on the individual and proposes new forms of regional ecological collectives integrated at the global level It critically examines the assumptions of economics and re envisions it as more integrally related to society and ecology The volume integrates insights from a variety of fields including humanities natural and social science placing human life in the setting of ecology The chapters invoke a historical institutional methodology to examine the link between economic theories and economic institutions understanding performativity and applying reflexivity and the potential for the emergence of new visions and methods The method draws upon literary studies linguistic philosophy as well as long term economic history Providing an alternative view of the relationship of humans to the earth this book is appropriate for students and researchers across a variety of disciplines including economics history ecology and philosophy

21st-Century Narratives of World History R.
