I. Opening vignette

- A. Different peoples have believed that the world was created in different ways.
  - 1. myths of origin try to answer a fundamentally human question: what happened in the beginning?
  - 2. try to provide a larger context to anchor particular societies
- B. World historians also try to puzzle out beginnings.
  - 1. modern creation stories depend heavily on fields that developed during and after the Scientific Revolution (astronomy, physics, geology, biology)
  - 2. but modern models are better at answering how things began than why
  - 3. many modern people have tried to reconcile scientific and religious understandings of beginnings

II. The History of the Universe

- A. The largest modern framework for understanding beginnings is “big history.”
  - 1. “history of everything” from the big bang to the present (around 13.7 billion years)
  - 2. the largest possible context for understanding the human journey
    - a. the idea of the cosmic calendar: whole history of the cosmos as a single year
- B. The study of cosmic history is disturbing to many.
  - 1. gives a sense of the insignificance of human life
  - 2. but human awareness of the universe makes us unique and can inspire awe

III. The History of a Planet

- A. Our solar system emerged around 4.7 billion years ago.
- B. Life first appeared on earth about 600 million years after the earth itself was formed.
  - 1. remained at the level of single-celled organisms for about 3 billion years
  - 2. all multicelled creatures have evolved over the past 600 million years
- C. Each species has had its own history.
  - 1. but history books and courses focus on our own species, Homo sapiens
  - 2. Homo sapiens only appeared in the last few minutes of December 31 on the cosmic calendar
- D. The short history of Homo sapiens has had more consequences for the planet than the history of any other species.
  - 1. human communication skills allow us to learn from each other
  - 2. ability to accumulate knowledge and pass it on to future generations
  - 3. humans have had a massive impact on the earth

IV. The History of the Human Species . . . in a Single Paragraph: A Preview

- A. The history of Homo sapiens has occupied roughly the last 250,000 years and is typically divided into three major phases.
  - 1. Paleolithic age was very long; 95 percent of human history
    - a. settlement of every major landmass
    - b. construction of the first human societies
  - 2. agricultural era began about 12,000 years ago

Corpus Stylistics and Dickens's Fiction Michaela Mahlberg,2013-01-17 This book presents an innovative approach to the language of one of the most popular English authors It illustrates how corpus linguistic methods can be employed to study electronic versions of texts by Charles Dickens With particular focus on Dickens s novels the book proposes a way into the Dickensian world that starts from linguistic patterns The analysis begins with clusters i e repeated sequences of words as pointers to local textual functions Combining quantitative findings with qualitative analyses the book takes a fresh view on Dickens s techniques of characterisation the literary presentation of body language and speech in fiction The approach brings together corpus linguistics literary stylistics and Dickens criticism It thus contributes to bridging the gap between linguistic and literary studies and will be a useful resource for both researchers and students of English language and literature      The End of Evangelicalism? Discerning a New Faithfulness for Mission David E. Fitch, 2011-02-04

In The End of Evangelicalism David Fitch examines the political presence of evangelicalism as a church in North America. Amidst the negative image of evangelicalism in the national media and its purported decline as a church, Fitch asks how evangelicalism's belief and practice has formed it as a political presence in North America. Why are evangelicals perceived as arrogant, exclusivist, duplicitous, and dispassionate by the wider culture? Diagnosing its political-cultural presence via the ideological theory of Slavoj Žižek, Fitch argues that evangelicalism appears to have lost the core of its political Jesus Christ. In so doing, its political presence has become empty. Its witness has been rendered moot. The way back to a vibrant political presence is through the corporate participation in the triune God's ongoing work in the world as founded in the incarnation. Herein lies the way towards an evangelical missional political theology. Fitch ends his study by examining the possibilities for a new faithfulness in the current day emerging and missional church movements springing forth from evangelicalism in North America.
