Vaccines for the 21st Century Institute of Medicine, Division of Health Promotion and Disease Prevention, Committee to Study Priorities for Vaccine Development, 2001-03-21. Vaccines have made it possible to eradicate the scourge of smallpox, promise the same for polio, and have profoundly reduced the threat posed by other diseases such as whooping cough, measles, and meningitis. What is next? There are many pathogens, autoimmune diseases, and cancers that may be promising targets for vaccine research and development. This volume provides an analytic framework and quantitative model for evaluating disease conditions that can be applied by those setting priorities for vaccine development over the coming decades. The committee describes an approach for comparing potential new vaccines based on their impact on morbidity and mortality and on the costs of both health care and vaccine development. The book examines lessons to be learned from the polio experience, scientific advances that set the stage for new vaccines, factors that affect how vaccines are used in the population, value judgments and ethical questions raised by comparison of health needs and benefits. The committee provides a way to compare different forms of illness and set vaccine priorities without assigning a monetary value to lives. Their recommendations will be important to anyone involved in science policy and public health planning.

policymakers, regulators, health care providers, vaccine manufacturers, and researchers. Vaccines and their Importance for Children Mutinda Jackson, 2018-10-02. Essay from the year 2018 in the subject Biology Diseases Health Nutrition grade 3-0. Kenyatta University language English abstract. In this current era of implausible technology, discovery, and medicine, it has adequately been proven that vaccines prevent diseases and infections. Significant medical institutions have for years conclusively supported and even advised the administration of vaccinations to avert infections that at times caused devastating impacts in both the person who contracted and in communities subjected to the disease transmission. Even though a stiff debate on the risks and benefits of vaccination remains evident with some groups protesting against the constitutionality of vaccine administration, the proponents of this debate have proven that failure to exercising this practice subjects the unvaccinated individual to sickness and even fatality through disease acquisition and transmission. Despite the fact that several novel statistics have demonstrated reduced occurrence of infections with consequences resulting from vaccine-induced passive immunity, fear of risks associated with vaccination still looms. Currently, there are several individuals who are not aware of diseases still occurring in underdeveloped economies due to herd immunity via a majority vaccinated population. However, due to globalization, diseases that may be prevented through vaccination have the potential of landing anywhere.
