network approaches of internationalization e.g. systems, new venture, born global and entrepreneur concepts. In the second part, alternatives for international market entry e.g. exports, franchising, joint ventures, contract manufacturing and foreign direct investments are explained. These market entry modes are categorized according to decision determinants such as hierarchical control, proximity to the market, risk of investment and the factor of time, which are important from the point of view of the corporate management involved in international business. The empirical part of this publication, which is the result of a longitudinal study, consists of case studies of Asian firms doing business in the consumer electronics industry. The cases of Samsung, Sony, Sharp, Matsushita, Panasonic, LG Electronics and TCL China provide fundamental insights into the firms' organizational structures, corporate cultures, respective sales volume and earnings performance as well as strategic concepts for their market penetration in Europe. A main emphasis is placed on an understanding of internal firm networks e.g. diversified business fields and vertical production depth and external firm networks e.g. joint ventures, supplier and buyer clusters as well as mutual capital interests. From the author's view, these network grids fundamentally contribute to the fact that Asian firms have more successfully positioned themselves in the market within the last two decades compared to their European competitors in the television set industry e.g. Grundig, Thomson or Philips. The networking aims and success factors as well as the changing strategic influence over the years of the partner firms both in bilateral Japanese joint ventures and in European Asian joint ventures are examined. The book provides complex background information about the development of the European television set market. The analysis demonstrates that firms holding the position of technological market leaders in their segment simultaneously indicate the most intensive network activities. The further development of the network theory and the detailed and up-to-date case studies of the most important Asian enterprises in the consumer electronics industry contribute to the value of this publication. Furthermore, on the basis of the knowledge gained from this study, chances and risk potentials can be derived for other European industries e.g. automotive. The book, written in English, is suitable for internationally oriented bachelor's, master's and MBA programs. Additionally, against the background of worldwide competition, the publication at hand offers relevant industry insights for interested political and economic decision makers.

Emerging Issues in Sustainable Development Mitsuo Matsushita, Thomas J. Schoenbaum, 2016-10-05. This book seeks to answer the questions: how do the rules of international treaties on trade and investment apply to the new laws and policies relating to energy-related trade and do the rules of the multilateral system contribute to or detract from sustainable development? An emerging set of new problems in the law of international trade is how to reconcile the rules of the multilateral trading system with shortages of certain natural resources and the necessity to develop renewable energy resources. The chapters in this book provide a comprehensive analysis of the international trade issues presented by national trade laws and policies with regard to natural resources and energy. This book is about the extent to which we are interpreting existing rules to cover emerging problems and how the rules of the multilateral trading system can be adapted. to achieve sustainable development in natural resources and energy The book begins with a survey of selected national laws relating to recent restrictions on the export of natural resources both resources used to produce energy as well as natural resources essential for industrial production After examining the range of such laws in selected important countries we turn to the application of the rules of the multilateral trading system to such export restrictions We discuss the major rules of the World Trade Organization WTO as well as the natural resources rules in selected regional preferential free trade agreements While there is not a comprehensive global legal regime on competition law we believe it is also important to examine how selected national competition laws impact export restrictions on natural resources This book will be a major contribution to the international dialogue on international economic law issues with respect to trade in natural resources and energy
