Treatise on Geomorphology, 2013-02-27. The changing focus and approach of geomorphic research suggests that the time is opportune for a summary of the state of the discipline. The number of peer-reviewed papers published in geomorphic journals has grown steadily for more than two decades and more importantly the diversity of authors with respect to geographic location and disciplinary background (geography, geology, ecology, civil engineering, computer science, geographic information science and others) has expanded dramatically. As more good minds are drawn to geomorphology and the breadth of the peer-reviewed literature grows, an effective summary of contemporary geomorphic knowledge becomes increasingly difficult. The fourteen volumes of this Treatise on Geomorphology will provide an important reference for users from undergraduate students looking for term paper topics to graduate students starting a literature review for their thesis work and professionals seeking a concise summary of a particular topic. Information on the historical development of diverse topics within geomorphology provides context for ongoing research, discussion of research strategies, equipment and field methods, laboratory experiments and numerical simulations, reflect the multiple approaches to understanding Earth's surfaces and summaries of outstanding research questions highlight future challenges and suggest productive new avenues for research.
