FINAL EXAM, 2014

Due in my mailbox in ISB 232 by 5 pm. on Tuesday, June 10.

This must be your own work. No collaboration is allowed. You may use your notes, books, and the web.

For the C/C++/Fortran/Java questions you must write a program in C, C++, Java or Fortran, but not use Mathematica. (Of course, nothing stops you from checking your answer with Mathematica.) You must provide a listing of the program, the output, and any relevant explanation. Group all parts of a question together.

For the Mathematica questions you must provide a listing of the commands you used, the output, and any relevant explanation. Put all your answers to the Mathematica part in one notebook.

Threshold Concepts in Practice Ray Land, Jan H. F. Meyer, Michael T. Flanagan, 2016-07-09 Threshold Concepts in Practice brings together fifty researchers from sixteen countries and a wide variety of disciplines to analyse their teaching practice and the learning experiences of their students through the lens of the Threshold Concepts Framework In any discipline there are certain concepts the jewels in the curriculum whose acquisition is akin to passing through a portal Learners enter new conceptual and often affective territory Previously inaccessible ways of thinking or practising come into view without which they cannot progress and which offer a transformed internal view of subject landscape or even world view These conceptual gateways are integrative exposing the previously hidden interrelatedness of ideas and are irreversible However they frequently present troublesome knowledge and are often points at which students become stuck Difficulty in understanding may leave the learner in a liminal state of transition a betwixt and between space of knowing and not knowing where understanding can approximate to a form of mimicry Learners navigating such spaces report a sense of uncertainty ambiguity paradox anxiety even chaos The liminal space may equally be one of awe and wonderment Thresholds research identifies these spaces as key transformational points crucial to the learner's development but where they can oscillate and remain for considerable periods These spaces require not only conceptual but ontological and discursive shifts This volume the fourth in a tetralogy on Threshold Concepts discusses student experiences and the curriculum interventions of their teachers in a range of disciplines and professional practices including medicine law engineering architecture and military
