Ergler,2020-03-03 There s nothing really fun about the park in winter Christina Ergler is the first one to explore why play resonates differently across urban localities and seasons She draws on Bourdieu s theory of practice and Gibson s affordance theory to show that determinants of seasonal outdoor play transcend modifiable barriers such as traffic and unsuitable play spaces as well as the inevitable issue of inclement weather In contrast seasonal play determinants are grounded in locally constituted beliefs about what is seasonally appropriate children s activity To foster a healthier and more sustainable life for children outdoor play needs to become convenient all year round in all locations      Current Index to Journals in Education ,1995      Subject Catalog Library of Congress,      Bibliography of Agriculture ,1948      Risk and Protective Environmental Factors for Early Bilingual Language Acquisition Daniela R Gatt,Ciara O'Toole,2019-07-09 Bilingual language exposure is highly variable with wide ranging influences on early language skills This underscores the need for understanding what to expect in early language acquisition so that those with typical language development can be differentiated from those who are struggling or at risk and so requiring early intervention One of the key ways to look at language development in very young children is to investigate their vocabulary development and for bilingual children this means measuring their abilities in both languages This book takes an important step in this direction it documents the expressive vocabularies of children aged 16 45 months who were exposed to different language pairs and bilingual contexts and investigates the risk and protective effects of various environmental factors In each of the six studies the vocabularies of typically developing children were measured using the vocabulary checklist of the MacArthur Bates Communicative

Development Inventories and its adaptations to other languages Developmental and language background questionnaires provided additional information on children s developmental history risk factors for language impairment language exposure as well as parental education and occupation This harmonised methodology was designed within COST Action IS0804 Language Impairment in a Multilingual Society Linguistic Patterns and the Road to Assessment The outcomes of this cross linguistic research contribute towards answering theoretical questions regarding early bilingual vocabulary acquisition They also have clinical relevance potentially assisting speech language pathologists and those interested in early language development in distinguishing between clinically significant bilingual delays and the natural consequences of bilingual exposure This book was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Bilingual Education and Bilingualism
